There Has Been An Awful Lot of Kicking

THIS kicking has not been confined to the Football Team by a long shot. They have done their share and will continue through the balance of the season and well done. The overdue kicking has come from the professors and students because the campus has been torn up into trenches for the new heating system which I am told will be the best in the world. Go and inspect the plant next time in town. I am not kicking upon what an O. G. wrote me—Read: "These are good ads. Keep them up I'm sold for a 1/2 doz. if you can follow a sample shirt I will send you." C. E. K., N. Y. City. How about you? 1/2 doz. shirts for $22.50 made for you—write.

CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS

PRICE 12 CENTS

ITHACA, N. Y., NOVEMBER 9, 1922

VOL. XXV, No. 7

A REAL REUNION in the Old Armory was easily the feature of the home-coming in connection with the Columbia game last week, as far as the alumni are concerned. The arrangements were simple, the whole affair was informal, the food was good and abundant, and all who partook easily got their money's worth. President and Mrs. Farrand were there to greet the returned sons and daughters of Cornell, and the Faculty was well represented. President Farrand made another of his brief and felicitous speeches, stressing the coordination that now exists among alumni, Trustees, students, and Faculty.

BETTER CHEERING characterized the Columbia game, and the leaders had some new stunts. The presence of both the Columbia and Cornell bands added tone and color.

BABY-BLUE COLOR had been painted over the goal posts and cross-bars by some misguided Columbia enthusiast; it must have attracted, rather than repelled, Cornell touchdowns.

THE HUDDLE PLAY used by Columbia in which the whole team clustered about for conference and consultation even before a forced kick on the fourth down, to the great amusement of the Cornell bleachers, has been abandoned by the Rutgers team, where it was tried by Coach Foster Sanford.

ALPHA ZETA, agricultural fraternity, celebrated last week the twenty-fifth anniversary of the installation of its chapter at Cornell, the fourth one in the national organization.

THE SAGE CHAPEL Preacher for November 12 will be the Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, of Boston, president of the American Unitarian Association.

LECTURES for the week include "Weimar," by Professor Albert W. Boesche, in German, before the Deutscher Verein; an illustrated lecture on the program to be played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, by Professor James T. Quarles, assisted by Miss Gertrude H. Nye; "Argentine Economic Development," by Dr. Alejandro Bunge, professor of commerce and statistics in the National University of Buenos Aires; and President Farrand's Convocation address on Armistice Day. The speaker at the Current Events Forum on November 12 will be Dr. George H. Huntington, vice president of Robert College, Constantinople.

ARCHITECTURE STUDENTS are working on a problem which calls for a design of a memorial to the Unknown Soldier buried at Arlington.

A CHINESE RESTAURANT is the latest addition to Ithaca's eating places. It is on the east side of Aurora Street, near Seneca.

TEN WHITE RATS have been received at the Home Economics Building, to be the subjects of dietetic studies on the vitamin content of carrots.

SUDDEN DEATHS among the pet goldfish inhabitants of the women's dormitories are said to be due to a recent excess of chlorine used to purify the drinking water.

CAR 43 of the Ithaca Traction Corporation has a new wheel to take the place of the flat one that has bumped around the track for some time.

FLORICULTURE STUDENTS have just finished a natural planting of crocus and narcissus bulbs in the lawns around Roberts Hall of the College of Agriculture.

BROKEN-DOWN WOODEN STEPS at the west entrance to the Home Economics Building are being replaced, after a year of dilapidation, by a concrete stairway.

BASEBALL PRACTICE has been abandoned because of the cold weather. About sixty men have been reporting to Coach Carney, who is well pleased with the prospects for a good team next spring.

THE MANDOLIN CLUB has elected as its leader, as a result of the recent senior competition, George Myer '23 of Cohoes, N. Y.

WEARERS OF THE C have elected Edward V. Baker '23, of Willsboro, N. Y., to represent them on the Major Sports Council. Baker is a crew man.

CORNELL ARCHITECTS plan a new publication to be essentially the product of the College of Architecture, illustrated with wood-block and linoleum cuts produced by students and Faculty, and perhaps even printed by the students. Several previous attempts have been made to publish a magazine in this College, and while they may have been artistic successes, they have been financial failures. One lost $600 and a preceding one $400. The old debts have been paid by proceeds from the latest beaux arts ball and by the class of 1923. The new venture hopes to have four issues in the year.

STUDENT COUNCILMEN were elected on October 26 in a spirited election. Senior members are: James H. Luther, of Olean, N. Y.; Walter R. Rollo, of Freeport, N. Y.; Edward L. Kaw, of Houston, Texas; John J. Cole, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Benjamin H. Palmer, Jr., of Norwich Town, Conn. Junior members are: George R. Pfann, of Marion, Ohio; Frederic K. Loyejoy, of Manhasset, N. Y.; Charles Cassidy, of Honolulu, T. H.; Edward B. Kirby, of Newark, N. J.; Floyd D. Ramsey, of Auburn, N. Y. Sophomore members are: Harold Kneen, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio; and Thomas L. Stirling, of Wilmington, Del. Of the members elected, all but two are athletes.

DEAN EDWARD M. LEWIS of Amherst, is spending this month in Ithaca making a study of Cornell's relationship to other State institutions in the work carried on in Agriculture.

A COLLECTION OF ORCHIDS, the gift of A. R. Ward of Washington, D. C., is soon to be moved to special quarters in the greenhouses of the Department of Floriculture. The collection contains many of the common and rare species of orchid gathered in the tropical and sub-tropical regions of North America, South America, India, and Africa. The most notable of the rare varieties is the dove orchid, Peristeria Elata.

STUNT NIGHTS at the Cosmopolitan Club every Friday furnish a novel means of bringing about international understandings, as may be easily understood from the fact that at a recent gathering entertainment and music were furnished by Syrians, Japanese, Chinese, Italians, Englishmen, Filipinos, and Americans. An imitation of Charlie Chaplin by a Syrian was the hit of the evening.

BULL-POWER, which has nothing to do with professional oratory or Andalusian athletics among the undergraduates, has been put to use in the Dairy Barn. The sires of the herd keep in condition and save about fifteen dollars a month in electric power bills by working in a treadmill that pumps water to the milk-cooling apparatus.

ENTERTAINMENT of visiting teams under official oversight was formally begun at the University when the Student Council appointed, on October 31, a committee to play the host to the Columbia football team. Under the charge of Henry T. Buckman '24, of Kingston, Pa., as chairman, the committee met the visiting team at the station, showed them about the Campus, and, with the cooperation of the Athletic Association, saw generally to the team's comfort and pleasure while they were in Ithaca. A permanent organization for this purpose has been planned for the future.

THE SOCCER LEAGUE intercollege championship was won on November 3 by the College of Agriculture, which defeated the Veterinary College team in a hard-fought game ending in a 1-0 score.

Secretaries Plan Reunions

Representatives Take First Steps Toward Gathering of Twenty-one Classes Next June

At a meeting in Ithaca on November 4, called jointly by the president of the Association of Class Secretaries, Andrew J. Whinery '10, and the Alumni Representative, Foster M. Coffin '12, fourteen of the reunion classes were represented by officers or other delegates to discuss plans for the reunions next June. In general it was agreed to follow the program of the classes which returned last spring for what has been voted the most successful alumni gathering ever held at Cornell except for the Semi-Centennial Celebration in 1919.

The meeting was agreed that it is important for reunion classes to appoint early a reunion chairman who may or may not be the class secretary or president, a small executive committee, selected from those members of the class who live sufficiently close together to make possible frequent meetings, and a large general committee, selected on lines of geographical distribution. The classes are asked to have these committees in operation in time for progress reports at the meeting of the Association of Class Secretaries in New York next December.

All present approved the proposal to repeat the reunion calendar issued last New Year's Day from the alumni office in Ithaca and mailed to each member of the reunion classes. It was also voted to continue the practice of a general reunion letter head adaptable for all classes. The working out of details of the reunions was left to a general committee, to be appointed.

The following alumni attended the meeting: Irving P. Church '73, John H. Comstock '74, Albert W. Smith '78, Henry H. Wing '81, Willard W. Rowlee '88, Clark S. Northup '93, Charles L. Durham '99, George H. Young '00, Percy O. Wood '08, Andrew J. Whinery '10, Foster M. Coffin '12, Walter A. Bridgeman '13, Aretsen P. Keasbey '13, Clara Howard '14, Elbert P. Tuttle '18, William M. Kendall '19, Kurt A. Mayer '20, Silence Rowlee '20, Hazel A. Dates '21, Allan H. Treman '21.

Under the new group plan or under the old "multiple-of-five" rule, twenty-one classes are expected to be represented in Ithaca next June. In one or two cases the attendance will be limited to some degree by the fact of reunions held last spring or by the expectation of celebrations in 1924. The complete list includes: '73, '78, '79, '80, '81, '82, '83, '88, '93, '98, '99, '00, '01, '03, '08, '13, '17, '18, '19, '20, and '21.

ITHACA CLUB MEETS

The first meeting of the Cornell Club of Ithaca since the election of new officers was held in the Barnes Hall Coffee House on November 1. Dr. Luzerne Coville '86 was in the chair as president, with Archie M. Palmer '18 as secretary. Reports of the Pittsburgh convention were made by R. Warren Sailor '07, the official delegate, with supplementary details provided by Romeyn Berry '04 and Foster M. Coffin '12. Sixty members attended.

1926 WINS RUSH

Outnumbering their opponents by four to one, the freshmen won the annual Hallowe'en free-for-all rush on Upper Alumni Field. In the push-ball contest which preceded this event, in which the teams were evenly matched in numbers, the sophomores were victorious.

The 1925 men were less loyal to their class than the yearlings. Starting with a nucleus of but sixty men, the sophomores, in spite of lusty calls for classmates during their march to the scene of the battle, had less than two hundred men to defend the class honor.

The freshmen gathered five hundred strong at the corner of Green and Cayuga Streets and, marshaled by C men, paraded to the north end of the Field. Here the largest of them were chosen for the push-ball contest, which the sophomores easily won. Following this game, the rest of the freshmen joined their classmates and took swift revenge on the sophomores for the first defeat.

REUNION ATTRACTS ALUMNI

Attendance of more than a thousand alumni and other Cornellians at the luncheon in the Old Army on November 4 was effective proof of the popularity of the fall Alumni Reunion Day, and assurance that the custom of this general gathering is a desirable addition to the class reunions in June. The basic idea behind the program was one of informality, with few stated meetings. The luncheon was the one time when all alumni were brought together. Graduates ranging from the class of '71 down to the brand new alumni of '22, coming to Ithaca from points as far west as Oklahoma and as far south as Georgia, joined with members of the Faculty and the local old grads in a general celebration.

The program was deliberately planned to have no definite schedule. President and Mrs. Farrand were present informally. In response to a "long yell" the President voiced his appreciation and gratitude of the support given by her alumni to the University, and to himself as her new leader, during his year in office. The president recalled the fact that although he has had the opportunity to meet hundreds of Cornellians during the year, at many meetings and dinners, it was at the fall reunion day a year ago that he first addressed an alumni group.

Luncheon was served by the University, and appreciation was expressed generally for the opportunity to secure a substantial meal at a nominal price at a convenient point on the Campus.

Law College Celebrates

Form Alumni Association on Thirty-fifth Anniversary—Speakers Compliment College

Three hundred or more alumni, undergraduates, and Faculty members of the College of Law joined in the celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the College on Saturday, November 4. Approximately one hundred and fifty of those attending the anniversary exercises were Law College alumni, most of whom joined in the organization of a Law Alumni Association.

Judge Frank H. Hiscock '75, chief judge of the New York Court of Appeals, gave the principal address of the day in Boardman Hall on Saturday morning. He was introduced by Dean George G. Bogert '06, who told of the great interest Judge Hiscock has maintained in the College of Law both as chief judge of the highest court in the State and as head of the Judicial Department, which is responsible for setting the standards for admission to the bar. Judge Hiscock praised the work of the first three Deans of the College; Judge Francis M. Finch and Judge Douglas Boardman for the preliminary work which they accomplished in laying the foundations for legal education, and Dean Ernest W. Huffcut '84 for his ability as a teacher of law and for the energy which he devoted to the organization of the curriculum of the school along lines which were followed for many years. He told his audience that he wished the proprieties of the occasion permitted his extending his praise to the later Deans and Faculties of the College, who are still devoting their best efforts to the development of the highest type of legal education at Cornell.

Judge Hiscock impressed upon his audience the importance of the role which the well trained lawyer plays in American life, stressing particularly the need for the type of broad, public-spirited legal education which has always been given in the Cornell College of Law. The speaker said he should feel disappointed with the history of the College if he did not know that Cornell lawyers were grounded on fundamentally sound conceptions of the Constitution and laws of the United States; if he did not know that they received, in addition to a training in the ordinary fundamentals of the profession, a proper attitude towards their responsibilities in the leadership which of necessity falls to the lot of the good lawyer.

He specifically denounced the attempt which will be made by Senator Robert M. LaFollette and Samuel Gompers to pass a Constitutional amendment which would sweep away from the judiciary the power to determine the constitutionality of laws passed by Congress. He cited this as one of the attacks directed against the fundamental principles upon which the United States Government is founded, and told his hearers that if such movements were to be successfully defeated it would be because the College of Law at Cornell and similar institutions continued to give the broadest kind of legal training.

President Farrand spoke after Judge Hiscock, and he assured the law alumni, Faculty, and students of the whole-hearted interest of the entire University in the work and progress of the Law College. He said it was significant that law schools which have successfully developed during the last quarter century have in practically every case grown up in connection with universities, rather than as independent institutions. From this fact he indicated that he felt the broadening influence given by academic training to be of distinct value as prelegal preparation.

Following the formal address of the morning, Dean Bogert announced a meeting of alumni of the College for the purpose of forming an alumni association.

Judge William L. Ransom '05, of New York, was elected temporary chairman and Paul E. Lesh '06, secretary. Ways and means were brought up for discussion. It was decided that the present time was most opportune for action in this direction, and thereupon, a motion was passed to the effect that a Law College Alumni Association be formed. A committee on organization and bylaws was appointed as follows: Donald R. Almy '97 of New York, chairman; Judge Charles H. Blood '88 of Ithaca; Frederick D. Colson '98 of Albany; John J. Kuhn '98 of Brooklyn; Frank K. Nebeker '95, of Washington. Meetings of this committee will be held when called by the chairman.

Next in order was appointment of a nominating committee for the selection of officers for the association. The men chosen on this were as follows: Winthrop Taylor '07 of Brooklyn; Judge Edgar S. Mosher '00, of Auburn; James W. Persons '03, of Buffalo; Judge Willard M. Kent '98, of Ithaca; Edgar D. Sebring '03 of Waverly.

The annual Law smoker, held in the Dutch Kitchen, brought the celebration of the anniversary to a close on Saturday evening. The program included talks by Dean Bogert, Dean James P. Hall '94, Judge George McCann '88, Judge William L. Ransom '05, Judge Cuthbert W. Pound '87, Romeyn Berry '04, and Judge F. W. Bleakley '04. Arthur H. Dean '23 was toastmaster. The nominating committee reported the following slate of officers to serve until the regular elections later: John J. Kuhn '98, president; James W. Persons '03, vice-president; Riley H. Heath '13, secretary; Horace E. Whiteside '22, assistant secretary.

A NEW TAXICAB company, organized with the avowed aim of reducing taxicab fares in Ithaca, advertised its opening day on October 25 by placing its cabs free of charge at the disposal of all who wished to ride in them.

SPORT STUFF

There were a large number of alumni in town over the week end.

Alumni as a class are decent, law abiding useful citizens. They belong to the Presbyterian Church, the Golf Club and the Republican County Committee. They love their families and are interested in civic enterprises and home brewing. If they have a tummy full of good food and plenty of tobacco and matches and the football team is going well they cry when Alma Mater is sung.

But if they get their applications in late and in consequence draw a seat back of the goal post, and the team drops a game, then you've got to watch them closely. If you don't they are liable to turn around quick as lightning and bite you in the arm.

The seat sale for the Pennsylvania game opens for members of the athletic association on November 13th. The general sale opens November 14th. The sale closes—as far as Ithaca is concerned—on November 25th. That night anything left goes back to Pennsylvania. The applications received up to November 4th fill one steamer trunk.

R. B.

WOLHEIM IN CHICAGO

Louis R. Wolheim '07, playing the title role in "The Hairy Ape," was the principal attraction at the weekly luncheon of the Cornell University Association of Chicago at the Hamilton Club on November 2.

TO SELECT MASQUE JOKES

Having been charged with writing the Masque play to be given next Junior Week, the Manuscript Club has announced that no "booze" or "lingerie" jokes will be accepted. Although the Manuscript Club will be responsible for the annual play, material is solicited from the entire University Community.

Whether booze and lingerie jokes are banned as a step toward putting a stop to the Eighteenth Amendment as the butt of comedy jokes, or whether it is an effort to get a greater variety in college humor is not certain, no reason having been given for the club's action.

EXTENSION STAFF MEETS

Former Dean Liberty Hyde Bailey sounded the theme of the State Extension Conference at the College of Agriculture last week when he said that the College must, through its extension forces, endeavor to make life mean more to farm folk in New York State. He spoke of the danger of having any class of persons subjugated, economically or otherwise, and said that the ultimate object of the College must be to reach the individual man and woman on the farm.

This conference was the first to include all the extension forces of the College and was attended by almost three hundred county agricultural agents, home demonstration agents, junior club leaders, members of the farmers' institute staff, and persons attached to the extension staff at the College.

One of the features of the week was a series of six lectures on economic subjects by Professor Thomas N. Carver, Ph.D. '94, of Harvard. Conferences and discussions of technical problems occupied the remainder of the week, and most of the visitors attended the Columbia game on Saturday afternoon.

BOSTON WOMEN ELECT

The annual election of the Cornell Women's Club of Boston, held on October 21, resulted as follows: president, Mrs. Thomas Dransfield, Jr., '08; vice-presidents, Mrs. Horace Van Everen '91, Miss Henrietta Winchester '93; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harry M. Varrell '10. Mrs. Andrew D. White was the guest of honor.

CLEVELAND TALKS ENGINEERING

Warren S. Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, spoke to one of the largest meetings of the year of the Cornell Club of Cleveland at the Hotel Statler on November 2.

He explained the labor union of which he is the head and the brotherhood cooperative national bank of which he is president. He said that no engineer is compelled to join the union and expressed himself as against compulsion. Mr. Stone spoke of the great responsibility of passenger engineers, saying that only one of each six hundred firemen attains that position.

DETROIT STARTS SEASON

At the annual meeting of the Cornell University Association of Michigan, held on October 6 at the University Club of Detroit, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Henry E. Epley '03; vice-president, Edgar K. Ford '10; secretary, Clinton R. Tobey '18; treasurer, Llyod G. Grinnell '16; industrial secretary, James W. Parker '08; executive committee, alumni delegates, Robert C. Hargreaves '09 and Heatley Green '01.

At the regular weekly lunches held in Detroit on October 19 and 26 and November 2 at the Hotel Cadillac, the speakers were T. Glenn Phillips, secretary of the City Planning Commission, who told of the general zoning ordinances of Detroit, Howard A. Starrett '12, who followed with a talk on "What's Between the Covers of the Proposed Zoning Ordinance," and J. O. Stutsman, superintendent of the Detroit House of Correction.

GEORGE F. BAKER, donor of Baker Hall and of the Chemical Laboratory, was a guest of Robert H. Treman '78 over the week-end. Mr. Baker came here to attend the celebration of the Law School, and to inspect the progress of the Laboratory.

BRIEF UNIVERSITY NEWS

THE FRAME BUILDING formerly occupied by the Landscape Art Department has been taken over by the Rural Engineering Department, and the drafting rooms formerly given over to landscape art are now used for the making of barn plans and diagrams of sewage disposal plants. The landscape artists are in the basement of White Hall.

THE BEAUX ARTS BALL, which has been a feature of the social life of the University for the past four years, may be given up this year because of the feeling on the part of members of the Faculty of the College of Architecture that the elaborate preparations for it take too much time from the regular work.

THE WOMEN'S ATHLETIC CONFERENCE of Eastern Colleges, which had been in session at the University during the week preceding, came to a close on November 4, with a banquet given to the visitors at Risley Hall. President Farrand and Dean Georgia L. White were the chief speakers of the evening. The entire entertainment was planned by the Women's Self-Government Association.

THE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP of the University, decided by tournament which has been running since October 2, has been won by Donald G. MacBean '23, of Philadelphia.

THE CHESS CLUB has planned to hold a continuous ladder tournament throughout the year for all its members; and a simultaneous tournament in Barnes Hall in which Charles K. Thomas '21 will play, at the same time, all the members of the club, which numbers about forty. The club has elected Herbert R. Peters '24, of Freeport, N. Y., president for the coming year.

THE CHIMES COMPETITION, as a result of which the chime-master is chosen, is presenting difficulties to the judges this year because of the close approach to equality of the three men left in the competition. Last week each of the three men occupied the tower for one day, the identity of the man being unknown to the judges. The judges, who are Professor James T. Quarles, Professor Eugene P. Andrews '95, and Professor Ralph H. Keniston, were unable to distinguish between them.

THE CORNELL ERA was made a member of the Ithaca Board of Commerce at its meeting on November 1st, thus completing the list of the five major publications as members.

THE TENNIS SINGLES championship in the annual fall tournament was won on October 28 by Manuel H. Barredo, Jr., '24, of Manila, P. I., by defeating Albert S. Muller '23, of Huntington, L. I., in three sets out of four. Barredo is also holder of the indoor championship. The doubles championship was won by Barredo and Muller in straight sets.

Columbia Snowed Under

In defeating Columbia by a score of 56 to 0 on Schoellkopf Field last Saturday the football team did rather better than had been expected; or to put it another way, the New York eleven did not put up as effective a resistance as it was thought they might. For a minute or two at the opening of the game Columbia played with a vim and spirit that gave promise of a lively engagement; but after Eddie Kaw had run back a punt thirty-five yards down the west side line for a touchdown, the Cornell machine got into action and ground Columbia down in rather merciless fashion. The New Yorkers fought doggedly, but for them the game was largely a matter of individual effort, while Cornell on the other hand was better together than at any time this year. The team looked about on a par with last year's machine at this time.

The line gave adequate and intelligent cooperation to the backs, permitting a good deal of open field running. Of course Columbia's line defense was poor, crude; it could not be compared with that of Colgate two weeks before, or with what may probably be expected of Dartmouth next Saturday. The burden of stopping the Cornell attack fell largely upon a sorely harassed secondary defense. Koppisch and Roderick, two really good backs, did all that could be expected, the fleet Koppisch three times nailing a Cornell runner who had a clear field, but even so, they might occasionally check, they could not stop the speed, punch and drive of the galloping Cornell backs, who always fought forward as long as it was possible to make an extra inch. They dodged, twisted, turned, and fought their way over, through, or around tackler after tackler. Eddie Kaw, at the top of his game, scored three touchdowns, by running back punts. The second was as pretty a bit of play as has been seen here in a long time. Taking the punt in full stride on Columbia forty-yard line he streaked along the east side of the field dodging, stiff arming, shaking off four or five tacklers before he crossed the final chalk mark. Equally brilliant was the work of George R. Pfann, quarter back, who proved the greatest individual ground gainer of the day, tearing off several spectacular runs and proving a very hard man to stop. On one occasion as he was about to turn to receive a forward pass he slipped on the soft field and went down, but almost prone he reached up his arms and caught Kaw's toss successfully on the Columbia twelve-yard line, completing the pass for a first down, and opening the way for a touchdown a minute later, he himself taking the ball over. Ramsey, too, played brilliantly, picking his holes with an uncanny precision and accuracy, hesitating just long enough to throw his opponents off balance and to give the line the chance to make the hole he required. He reeled off one forty-yard run and he made gain after gain in short dashes through the line. Post, at full back, and his successor Calleson also did their bit nicely.

For the most part Cornell used the running game, sweeps off tackle, straight bucks, with an occasional buck through the short side. In the third period came some deception; four forward passes, short tosses over the scrimmage line thrown with the speed of a bullet, made about forty yards. The team showed just enough to prove that it had something in reserve, but as far as this game was concerned, the running game was sufficient. Tackle play by Hanson and Sundstrom was conspicuous; Hanson kicked seven goals from placement after touchdowns, out of seven attempts. The center trio, Flynn, Richards, and Rollo showed a lot of improvement and ends gave a better account of themselves than in the Colgate game.

A statistical summary shows that Cornell made twenty-one downs to Columbia's three; gained 340 yards by rushing to 58 for Columbia, tried six passes and completed four, while Columbia completed three passes out of twelve attempts; Cornell made fifty-two yards by passes to Columbia's twenty, fumbled twice to Columbia's three times, and lost forty-five yards in penalties to sixty for the New Yorkers.

Kaw's first touchdown was after five minutes of play. A little later Columbia tried a forward pass well in her own territory and Kaw intercepted it and ran to the eleven-yard line. A short, sharp rushing attack scored a touchdown. Two more scores were made in the second period, three in the third, and one in the fourth. Columbia never threatened until the last period, when Whetstone, a substitute back, fumbled on Cornell's thirty-one-yard line and Columbia recovered. A forward pass attack was blocked, however, and the game was soon ended. The fourth period saw most of the Cornell second team in action.

A crowd of 14,000 persons saw plenty of action and not a few thrills but not much of a game. Columbia individually looked better than as a team. The material seemed potentially promising, but it had not been moulded into the semblance of a machine.

Between halves the Cornell stands gave a rousing long yell in honor of George F.

Baker of New York, Cornell's benefactor, who saw the game as the guest of Robert H. Treman, and the Columbia cohorts on the west stand followed suit.

Cross Country Wins

The cross country team won the Syracuse intercollegiate race Saturday afternoon and thereby provided an agreeable surprise party, for it was hardly expected that the inexperienced group of runners Coach Moakley is building into a team this year could do so well. The team certainly must have made rapid progress in the past two weeks, to defeat Columbia and Syracuse, which are both well equipped with seasoned distance runners, and Carnegie Tech was also supposed to be formidable.

Team strength, always the basic principle of the Moakley system, triumphed. The first Cornellian to cross the tape, Gordon, finished in fourth place. The other winning Cornellians finished as follows: Smith seventh, Morrison eighth, Williams tenth, Bonsal thirteenth.

The team scores follows: Cornell 42, Columbia 52, Syracuse 55, Penn State 97, Carnegie Tech 109, Colgate 169.

Dykemann of Carnegie Tech was the individual winner, a well timed spurt bringing him across the tape fifty yards ahead of Higgins of Columbia, who had a larger margin over Case of Syracuse, who finished third. A fine spurt by Gordon of Cornell landed him in fourth place ahead of Moore of Columbia. The other Cornellians to score were fairly well bunched.

The course was four and a half miles and the time, 25 min. 15 seconds, considered fairly satisfactory considering the heavy going.

The Cornell victory was a most creditable performance, a real achievement by a team that set out to accomplish what seemed to be the impossible and succeeded. It will do much to hearten the squad for the coming meets.

Soccer Team Defeats Harvard

The soccer team did its bit to make Saturday a memorable day in athletics by defeating Harvard at Cambridge by a score of 3 to 2. Harvard went ahead in the first half, Heizer scoring. Myer, the Cornell center, soon evened the count. Heizer again put the Crimson in front on a kick from scrimmage but Myer again proved equal to the task of trying to score, making a goal by a well directed kick on a pass from Smith. At the end of the half the score was 2 all.

Fifteen minutes after the opening of the second half Meyer stopped the ball at mid-field and dribbled it through the Crimson defense for the final court. Fine team work and a stout defense by Cornell held Harvard helpless for the balance of the game.

Freshmen Lose

The freshmen football team lost another game Saturday, being defeated by the Columbia yearlings in New York by a score of 21 to 6.

OBITUARY

Albert J. Rice '71

Albert Josiah Rice, who entered the University with the first freshman class, died last January at Sodus, N. Y., of heart disease, with which he had been ill for some time. He was registered in the optional course, and remained two years.

William S. Gifford '77

William Stewart Gifford died at his home in Jamestown, N. Y., on October 7.

He entered the University in 1873, receiving the degree of B. S. in 1877, and was a member of Alpha Delta Phi and a Cornellian editor. He lived in Jamestown for many years.

Elias J. F. Durand '93

Professor Elias Judah Durand, chairman of the department of botany in the University of Minnesota, died at his home in St. Paul on October 29, of cancer. The first intimation of his affliction came on August 12 as the result of a preliminary operation at the Mayo Hospital, Rochester, Minn.; it was then clear that he had no chance of recovery. Interment was made in the family plot at Canandaigua, N. Y.

Durand was born at Canandaigua on March 20, 1870, the son of Rufus and Anne Maria Sisson Durand. Entering Cornell in 1889, he became a member of Sigma Xi, Quill and Dagger, Congress, the Classical Association, and the Natural History Society, of which he was president in his senior year.

Then he became a fellow, assistant, and instructor in botany at the University.

In 1910 he went to the University of Missouri as assistant professor of botany, being made associate the next year. In 1918 he was called to the University of Minnesota as professor of botany. He was a member of the Botanical Society of America and the American Phytopathological Society, and a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This is a brief record of a life devoted to science, for which Durand as a youth evinced a decided aptitude. He was a patient, accurate, and thorough investigator, scholarly and untiring. His papers were models of lucidity and formed substantial contributions to knowledge. He was also a popular and efficient teacher, whose lectures were always well organized and whose supervision of the laboratory was never perfunctory. He had brought together one of the finest private herbaria in America, and his botanical library contained many rare and invaluable works.

Durand was married on September 6, 1899, to Miss Anne Louise Perry '94 who died on June 11, 1901, leaving a daughter, Anne Louise Perry Durand '23, who has been studying this fall at the University of Minnesota. On July 24, 1917, he was married to Miss Sue G. Stone, of Columbia, Mo., who also survives him.

Chauncey W. Waggoner '05

Professor Chauncey William Waggoner, head of the department of physics in the University of West Virginia, died on October 26 in Shreveport, La., of injuries received when he was thrown from a horse, two days before.

Waggoner was born February 23, 1881. After graduating from Ohio University, he came to Cornell in 1904 for graduate work in botany, receiving the degree of A. M. in 1905. Four years later he received the degree of Ph. D. While in the Graduate School, he was an instructor also in physics. Since 1909 he had been head of the department of physics in the University of West Virginia; he was on sabbatic leave this year, and was taking a vacation when the accident occurred in which his skull was fractured.

He is survived by his widow and two children.

SCABBARD AND BLADE elections include John K. Anthony '23, of Cleveland, Ohio; Edward C. Avery '23, of Auburn, N. Y.; D. Edward Brainerd '23, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Robert H. Carpenter '23, of Whitehall, N. Y.; Rodney C. Eaton '23, of Nyack, N. Y.; Albert Lucas '23, of New York; Arthur C. Mattison '23, of Comstock, N. Y.; William H. Mears '23, of Brooklyn, N. THE ADVENTURE OF HOMECOMING

The alumni events of the fall, completed last week by the homecoming reunion at the time of the Columbia game, indicate by their enthusiastic reception the approval of the alumni of the present schedule—convention and homecoming in the fall, and class reunions in June. When the demand for additional alumnus gatherings becomes sufficiently strong, a pilgrimage to a Founders Day celebration in January can easily be added to enlarge the schedule.

Cornell is in the way of having a sensible, rounded alumni program and organization. With the ground work so ably planned at the convention with a large group of active clubs of considerable prestige in new communities, with an alumni body already more than half interested in Cornell, and a single all powerful alumni association that promises to emerge from the former confusion at no distant time, Cornell stands to become what it now seems to be to the casual outside observer, a university with a powerful and efficient alumni organization.

There is one essential lacking—a sufficient interest on the part of more individuals that will impel them to return to Cornell oftener at the time of these general activities, and to drop in singly and in small groups whenever opportunity presents itself.

Those that do this now usually feel amply repaid for the effort. Obviously the new Union building, when erected, will make such homecoming, between seasons, more convenient and attractive. But why wait? The sentimental adventure of the first return to Alma Mater is always merely the forerunner of many such returns, always sentimental, always invigorating, but never but once an adventure. Subsequent returns usually become the most obvious and comfortable of necessities.

To those who didn't return Saturday to have their affection for Cornell rekindled, we can say: you have missed something that postpones for you, perhaps for years, the birth of a new interest in your life; you have missed the opportunity of acquiring a new hobby that you would never have had cause to regret. You are lucky in that each year will renew your opportunity, the fixed habit of opportunities in general to the contrary notwithstanding.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

PRINCETON on October 4 reported an enrollment of 2,130, of whom 1,194 were registered for A.B., 861 for B.S., and 75 for C.E. The freshman class will number about 600 students.

AT PENNSYLVANIA the indications are that the enrollment for the year will exceed 14,000.

THE NEW STADIUM on Franklin Field at Pennsylvania was opened on September 30. While the field was incomplete, it was still possible to accommodate about 29,000 persons. The full seating capacity will be 51,000.

THE LAST Harvard Summer School enrolled just under twenty-four hundred students; of this number nearly nine hundred were teachers and other school officers taking course in education.

SOME COLLEGE and university registration figures follow: Toronto, 862, as compared with 1,276 last year; Ohio State, 7,643, a gain of 408 over last year; Harvard, 6,265, as compared with 5,936 last year; Virginia, 1,630, a loss of four from last year; Illinois, 9,220, a gain of 418; Rutgers, 788, a gain of 23; New Jersey College for Women, 343, a gain of 59; Minnesota, 8,544, as compared with 7,771 last year; Princeton, 2,184; Michigan Agricultural College, 1,634, a slight increase over last year.

THE HARVARD ALUMNI BULLETIN for October 19 prints an article on the forty living colleges and university presidents who have studied at Harvard. The list includes President Comfort of Haverford, formerly head of our Romance Languages Department, and President Clyde A. Duniway '92, of Colorado College.

FACULTY NOTES

DEAN DEXTER S. KIMBALL addressed a meeting of the Engineers' and Architects' Club of Louisville on October 17, and organized a local section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

PROFESSOR JAMES EWING, of the Medical College, spoke at a meeting of the Kings County Medical Society on October 13, emphasizing the great importance of pathological analysis as a basis of practical medicine. Dr. Ewing is on the Advisory Council of the American Council for the Control of Cancer.

PROFESSOR H. C. THOMPSON, of the Department of Vegetable Gardening, is on sabbatic leave at Ohio State University, where he is engaged in advanced research in botany and plant physiology. Professor Paul Work is in charge of the department during his absence.

A THREE-TOED ARCTIC WOODPECKER was recently shot by George MacNeill of the Ornithology Department for the University Museum. This is the second of which there is record in Ithaca; the first, shot thirteen years ago, is also in the museum. This bird is rare at any distance south of the Canadian border, though an individual has been seen at Cambridge, Massachusetts.

DR. LIVINGSTON FARRAND, addressing the Ithaca Board of Commerce on November 1 in his capacity as honorary president of the body, urged that the development of the Campus should be taken into consideration as an important part of the city's contemplated projects looking toward the further development of the city.

THE COMMANDANT of the R. O. T. C., Colonel J. C. Nicholls, has made public several changes in his staff. Major D. J. MacLachlan has been transferred to Fort Leavenworth; Major Ralph Hospital has been ordered to Fort Sill; Captain Allender Swift, for four years adjutant at Cornell has been sent to Camp Benning; Captain Huntington is now stationed at Fort Thomas. To replace these officers, Captain G. R. Hayes comes here from the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill; Captain C. T. Senay and J. R. Eden come from the Infantry School at Camp Benning; Lieutenant Albert Pierson has been detailed here from the Canal Zone; and Lieutenant E. L. Siebert, son of Major General Siebert, reports here from Fort Myer.

PROFESSOR GEORGE A. EVERETT '99, who has taught more than three thousand students in oral expression in the College of Agriculture, says that the main lack in the student of to-day is the quality of imagination,—“not the kind that is exaggeration, but the kind that gives ability to make things real and vivid.”

LITERARY REVIEW

A New Story for Girls

Red-Robin. By Jane Abbott '03. With Illustrations by Hannah Roosevelt Richards. Philadelphia Lippincott. 1922. 19.8 cm., pp. 327. Price, $1.75.

A good story like this ought to have been printed better. Such printing as this, with its carelessness about leads and its forms like Granger's for Grangers', will do no good to the Lippincott reputation. The grammar, too, ought to have been touched up a bit.

The story itself is a beautiful romance of a young girl's personality and what it did for a mill town. There is plenty of excitement in the plot, and there is opportunity afforded for wholesome reflection about true charity. The two chief characters, Robin and Beryl, are finely drawn and convincing. The illustrations are not bad but do not come out well.

We congratulate Mrs. Abbott on a worthy addition to her list of stories for girls, which are worth while for others as well.

A Sound Book on Business

The ABC's of Business By Henry S. McKee. New York. Macmillan. 1922. 20.5 cm., pp. 135. Price, $1.

We are doing our alumni a real service in calling their attention to this book by a Los Angeles business man. It is a book for the plain people, written in simple language, and in it there is packed away a vast amount of common sense. The conservative will find comforting doctrine, and the radical will find some of the hardest nuts he has ever tried to crack. It is not, however, written by a worshiper at the shrine of Things as They Are. The author wants better things as much as anybody else; he is not blind to the faults of the present. He simply shows the utter futility of the ignorant short cut. He demonstrates by unanswerable arguments that we cannot violate economic law with impunity any more than we can the laws of physical nature. Indeed, his slogan, if he were to get excited, would be, No Trifling with Economic Law. He pleads, too, for increased intelligence. "Every year about six hundred newspapers and two books enter the average American home." He does not proceed to "rap" the newspaper, but he rightly evaluates it, and pleads for greater companionship with well selected books. The quotation with which he concludes must be repeated here: "There is no slavery but Ignorance; Liberty is the child of Intelligence."

Football for the Spectator

Football, and How to Watch it. By Percy D. Haughton. Introduction by Heywood Broun, Boston. Marshall Jones Company. 1922. 8vo., pp. xx, 211. Price $3.

Percy Haughton, who coached the Cornell football teams in 1899 and 1900, and who has since then been a big factor in building Harvard's football reputation, has written a book that Mr. Broun says places him among the old masters. But that as it may, Mr. Haughton has produced an extremely interesting book.

Football's worst feature, for the spectator, is that with so much action to watch the untrained sees little but the players of the ball, and notes, and cheers, little but the work of the back who carries it. Through ignorance of the finer points of the game, he (it is not always she by any means) misses the clever blocking and interfering of the guard or tackle that has made the run, pass, or kick, possible and safe.

The strategy of the play, for similar reasons, is taken for granted, and usually only the returning veteran knows enough to admire or deplore the choice of plays used to crash through for a score.

Mr. Haughton has done much in his book to broaden the vision of the spectator along these lines. He gives him a wealth of insight into the technique of the game that puts the non-combatant in virtually the position of an old veteran as far as being as his being able to follow the game is concerned. It is certainly much less trying on the physique, and almost as valuable as a year on the scrub.

Other interesting chapters give one a good picture of the significance of the development of the rules; modern practice in "scouting"; the function of the medical staff and the water-boy; and some substantial material on the real advantages of football as a game.

The book is apparently not intended to teach one how to play the game or to coach it. It is not without its uses, however, for this.

The author has courageously used the full page, without margins, for his many illustrations and diagrammatic pictures. It gives the book a unusual appearance of stratification but has the advantage of showing up details in a very practical way.

The author himself seems to have matured considerably since leaving Cornell. His portrait will bring recognition from many old Cornellians. The contour of his hair line has moderated considerably but many will identify him as a familiar figure in Ithaca and at Percy Field during those years.

This is you—at college

SEEKING a symbolic figure to represent Knowledge, let us turn away from the muses of antiquity and the be-capped and be-gowned youth of our own day.

How about the Football Player Tackling a Dummy? Isn't he typical of everything you do in these four years?

You are the Football Player. The dummy is every knotty problem you tackle, every effort to earn your way through, every examination, every campus activity.

Tackle the dummy hard, and you'll be ready for even bigger tests in the game of business or professional life.

Do not say about this symbol, "How clever", and let it go at that. It is worth nothing unless it reminds you to get the spirit of the Tackler into your work.

By his earnestness he seems to feel the thrill of combat. With set jaws and muscles tense he plunges at the dummy. For him it is alive, and the practice is a means to win the game.

If you intend to help score touchdowns after college, here is a man to measure up to.
