COLORFUL reunion costumes dominated the Campus on Friday and Saturday, to be supplanted on Sunday and Monday with the somber black of the Seniors' gowns. The white costumes of '09, coming back in the largest numbers of any class reunion, and the orange and black of '14 were most noticeable of all, with the deep blue of '22's costumes also plentiful. After the first day, Friday, ideal weather prevailed for the festivities, and by Monday night the place had nearly settled down to its summer quiet and peace.

DR. RUSSELL L. CECIL, of the Medical College in New York, has, according to the Metropolitan newspapers, experimented on more than a thousand monkeys in the past five years in the treatment of colds with chlorine gas. He is quoted as saying that he thought the chlorine gas treatment would have some value and that the future method of treating tuberculosis of the lungs, pneumonia, bronchitis, and other diseases of the respiratory tract, would be the direct method of introducing curative substances or vaccines into the lungs.

CAMPUS TREES got their annual shower bath of arsenate of lead last week, to protect them against the canker worm. Two spray outfits were busy on the Campus for several days.

THE NORTHWEST TERRITORY CLUB is a new organization at Cornell this year, made up of members of the Faculty and graduate students and their families who were born in the states of Washington, Oregon, or Idaho, as well as those who have lived there long enough to have caught that "intangible essence known as the spirit of the West; who have the regional fervor and zeal that makes them think of the West as once their home."

FIVE MEMBERS of Ye Hosts, the organization of hotel management students in the College of Agriculture, who are to work in Metropolitan hotels this summer, have engaged an apartment in New York, where the sign of the club will hang out with the latchstring.

CAPTAIN PAUL KOENIG, the former German naval officer who commanded the commerce raider Deutschland in her two visits to this country before the United States entered the war, stopped in Ithaca last week for a day's visit with his old friend, Professor Albert B. Faust.

its Sunday rest. It appeared again later in the week, however, probably because it was either taken as a prank or because the thief didn't know what to do with it after he got it.

STATE POLICE have been watching the highways out of Ithaca the past week with the result that several heavy fines have been paid by persons who took the curves near Forest Home at too great speed or passed other cars in dangerous places.

THE BOATHOUSE of the college crews on Courtney Inlet narrowly missed destruction by a fire which swept adjacent buildings and destroyed several motor boats the evening of June 10. The fire started from an unknown cause in one of the six-slip boathouses adjoining, which it completely destroyed.

SILAS H. (HIBBY) AYER '14, writer of "Cornell Victorious," was featured in the repetition of the annual Charity Show "Just Mary Brown," which was given on Friday evening of Senior Week. In his own act, it was promised that "Hibby" would introduce a new Cornell song which he had written.

SENIORS for the first time in many years held their banquet on June 10 in the Old Armory instead of downtown as had been the custom. Former Congressman Lewis Henry '09 was the principal speaker.

ON THURSDAY evening the Orchestra gave its annual Senior Week Concert in Bailey Hall where on Friday morning were held the Class Day exercises. To celebrate the appearance of the Ted Weems Orchestra of Philadelphia in Ithaca for the first time at the Senior Ball Friday evening and at several fraternity dances, the Victor Company released locally, a month ahead of schedule, a new record by these artists.

PROFESSOR HARRY H. LOVE, Ph.D. '09, of the Department of Plant Breeding, spent last week at Guelph, Canada, where he addressed the agronomy section of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists, in session there.

THE FIRST runaway car of the year on Ithaca's hills started from its parking place on East Seneca Street on June 8 and ran down across Aurora Street, snapping off a telephone pole in its journey. No one was injured.

AN ADDITION to the usual reunion days and Senior Week program was the presentation by the Dramatic Club on Friday and Saturday evenings to capacity audiences in the Campus Theatre in Goldwin Smith Hall of Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man."

CASCADILLA easily won the St. John's Military School track meet at Manlius, competing against teams from four other preparatory schools in the State.

ERIC DUDLEY and Mrs. Dudley are sailing from New York on June 21 for visits to relatives in England, Brittany, Scotland, and Wales, returning from Liverpool on August 29. They will visit their alma mater, the Royal Academy of Music in London.

AN EXHIBITION of paintings by Professor Walter King Stone of the College of Architecture opened in Washington, D. C., on May 18, at the Arts Club. One of his charcoal drawings, of a woodland path flanked by birch trees, was reproduced to occupy a full page in the April Inland Printer.

TWO SOPHOMORES, Robert V. Horton of Rochester and Mark M. Cleaver 2d, of Wilmington, Delaware, following the prevalent fashion among students of "bumming" their way on the trains, were picked from the head end of an engine at Sayre on May 17 by a railroad detective. They spent the night in the town lockup and the next day were sent back to Ithaca after having given their promises to send back money for their fines and to warn other students through the Sun of the dangers of this mode of travel.

PROFESSOR VLADIMIR KARAPETOFF spoke at the first annual convention of the northeastern section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, held in Worcester, Massachusetts, on June 4 and 5. He also entertained the delegates with a recital preceding the annual banquet.

THE SECOND drowning accident of the year occurred on June 11, when five-year-old Francis Yeyna, playing alone near South Cayuga Inlet, slipped on the wet grass and was drowned in ten feet of water.

Elect Alumni Trustees

Edwin N. Sanderson '87 and Roger H. Williams '95 Will Succeed Selves
—Record Vote Cast

Edwin N. Sanderson '87 and Roger H. Williams '95, both of New York, have been elected to succeed themselves on the Board of Trustees as a result of the vote of the alumni. Each completes his first five-year term as Alumni Trustee this month. The four candidates finished in the following order:

Edwin N. Sanderson '87.....4415
Roger H. Williams '95.....4392
Dr. Mary M. Crawford 'c4.....3915
Frank E. Gannett '98.....2914

The size of the vote—8,203 ballots were received—is indicative of the increasing interest in the elections for Alumni Trustee. The former high record was 7,716, cast a year ago, a figure which in turn had passed by just nine hundred the previous best, that of 1922.

EDWIN N. SANDERSON '87

Some of the interesting features of the voting appear in the following extract from the report of the elections committee, Andrew J. Whinery '10, chairman, Margaret L. Stecker 'c6 and Ross W. Kellogg '12, as made to the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation on June 14:

"Of the 8,203 votes received, 170 were rejected for various reasons. Thirty-seven alumni voted for three or more candidates, whereas the ballot clearly stated that votes should be cast for only two. Three returned blank ballots. One used a 1923 ballot. Eight signed their names to the ballots, which was directly contrary to the printed directions. One voted on the biographical sheet. Three returned their ballots in different envelopes from those enclosed with the ballots, and under the printed directions sent with the ballots this invalidated their votes. Eleven did not place any indication of vote in the square as indicated on the printed ballots, but in some cases did indicate their choice elsewhere on the ballots, but these votes could not be counted. Fifty-nine checked their choices instead of placing a cross in the square as directed.

"Four who had not received degrees from the University voted, and these were not counted because the Charter provides that only holders of degrees are eligible to vote. Mr. Rogalsky advised the committee that a large number of alumni returned their ballots with the name of the voter either typed or stamped on the envelope at the place where they were instructed to place their signatures. In each such case a letter was sent by the Treasurer, together with another ballot, advising them of the defect and requesting another vote. However, there were forty-three alumni who did not correct their votes as requested and their votes were not counted, because the Charter of the University provides that the signature must appear on the envelope in order that it might be checked with the signature of the former student which is recorded in the University records.

"In addition to the four candidates whose names were printed on the ballots, there were twenty other alumni who received votes. Of these, one received four votes, two received two votes, and seventeen received one vote each."

WOMEN'S FEDERATION ELECTS

Twelve of the women's clubs were represented at the annual meeting of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs held in Barnes Hall on June 13. Mrs. Charles W. Curtis (Stephanie Marx) '88 was in the president's chair. As a result of the elections held during the meeting she will be succeeded by Margaret L. Stecker 'c6, the president of the Cornell Women's Club of New York and secretary for women of her class. Mrs. Thomas Turnbull III (Clara Howard) '14 is the new second-vice president, succeeding Mrs. Blin S. Cushman (Jessie Manley) '96. Mrs. Turnfull is secretary of the Cornell Women's Club of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Georgia L. White '96, dean of women, reported on the status of the Ellen Richards Fund, and Mrs. Anna Botsford Comstock '85 reported that since 1915, $1123 had been loaned to undergraduate women from the Dearstyne Fund.

On motion of Dr. Mary M. Crawford 'c4, it was voted that a committee be appointed to consider closer cooperation with the office of the Alumni Representative of the University, with particular reference to elimination of duplication of effort.

A NEW motor-bus of the latest type, equipped with all conveniences for the comfort of its passengers, went into service between Ithaca and Auburn on June 10, making two round trips daily. It is expected that soon another will be added, to cut in half the time between trips.

Corporation Sets Precedent

Discussions of University Replace Usual Dry Reports and Minutes—Four Hundred Alumni Present

In the opinion of many alumni, the first annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation was not only a long step in advance of similar meetings of the Corporation's predecessor, the Associate Alumni of Cornell University, but made a contribution to the success of the reunion celebration that was perhaps more important than any other one event. The fundamental difference between this meeting and former gatherings of the general alumni association was that not one report was read nor one minute approved. Instead, Walter P. Cooke '91, as president, asked three men to give talks to the meeting. He asked President Farrand to talk intimately, confidentially, of the University, Judge Cuthbert W. Pound '87 to set forth what the alumni have done and can do to make for their greatest usefulness to Cornell, and R. Harold Shreve 'c2, president of the Cornell Club of New York, to outline the plans for the annual convention of the Corporation to be held in New York next November. There was no other business except the report of the results of the Alumni Trustee elections, announced elsewhere in this issue.

As he completes his third academic year at Cornell, Dr. Farrand has had many occasions to greet the alumni from the platform or as an after-dinner speaker. But the four hundred alumni in the Goldwin Smith amphitheatre last Saturday came to know their University as it is to-day, its aims and ideals and plans, as they seldom have before. The President had come prepared to speak for fifteen or twenty minutes, but he was not permitted to stop inside of forty-five.

Judge Pound made it clear to the alumni

Nineteen Twenty-Four Reunions Break All Previous Records

IF the usual quantity test is applied to the reunions of last week, they will stand out far in advance of any alumni celebration ever before held in Ithaca, excepting only the Semi-Centennial Celebration of five years ago. More alumni were back than in other years, and two classes passed by comfortable margins the previous high records of individual groups. But it was primarily in their quality, rather than in their quantity, that the 1924 reunions were pre-eminent. Whether it was at the rally Saturday night, or the general Alumni Corporation meeting in morning, or at the meetings of the various classes held throughout the three days, there was everywhere present that contagious spirit of enthusiasm which cannot but mean much to the University in the important relations with her thousands of sons and daughters.

During the last two years it has been the ten-year classes which have established new high figures. The Class of '12 had the record of 145 in 1922, the best up to that time; '13 added twenty to those figures last year. This year '14 continued that advance, 145 men and 36 women giving a grand total of 181; but it was the fifteen-year class which reached the two-hundred mark; 156 men and 44 women brought '09's total to the even figures.

In accordance with the custom inaugurated ten years ago by '99, the fifteen-year class had responsibility for the general rally in Bailey Hall on Saturday night. There too '09 set a new high standard, transforming into the climax of two remarkable days what in some years have been meetings of doubtful value.

Throughout the three days that Class set the pace for the reunions. Many individuals of the Class deserve particular credit, but there are none but will acclaim Bob Treman and Queenie Horton Sailor as two reunion chairmen who have set up standards which will challenge future competition.

As in the past two years, there were certain features which helped make these reunions an improvement over those which were held before the War. The continuation of the custom of rooming members of each class together, in dormitories and private houses, probably represents the one greatest advance. It is a safe statement to record the fact that the former custom of having members of the same class broken up in small groups around the Hill, some in the fraternity houses and some visiting friends, has been completely abandoned. The Drill Hall gave another evidence of its contribution to the general pleasure. A rainy day, Friday would ordinarily have been a difficult one, but the weather apparently made little difference to the hundreds of alumni who registered and visited and lunched in the one tremendous room.

The operation of the two schemes of reunion, the Dix Plan and the old "multiple of five" system, resulted in some interesting developments. Although the records for attendance were made by classes coming back under the old system, it was evident that the future trend, at least among the older classes, will be toward the abandonment of the old system and the following out of the new group plan. The Classes of '95 and '96, for instance, have already voted to hold no celebrations in commemoration of their thirtieth anniversaries.

President Farrand agreed to continue his custom of the last two years, visiting in one evening the class banquets being held in all parts of the Hill and downtown. Between 6.30 and nine he spoke in rapid succession to the men of '99, in the Home Economics Cafeteria; to the Class of '89, and the joint dinner of the Classes of '94, '95, '96, and '97 in Prudence Risley Hall; to '84 and the Early Eighties, at the Dutch Kitchen; the men of '09 and the Class of '04 in Cascadilla Building; the men of '22 at the Cornell Grill in Sheldon Court; the women of '22 at the University Club; in Sage College, the women of '99, of '09, and of the combined Classes of '13, '14, '15, and '16; in Barnes Hall, to the Class of '74, and to a group which made up all of the classes of the '70's other than the fifty-year group.

Following the banquets, all the reunion classes, and enough other alumni to leave standing room only in Bailey Hall gathered for the general rally, under the auspices of '09. As the classes entered the hall they were directed to the various sections marked with their numerals, a novel feature which was a distinct improvement over the casual seating plans of other years.

Bob Treman was the master of ceremonies. The introductory remarks of official greeting were entrusted to Lewis Henry '09. Treman then referred to the importance to Cornell University of an event which had happened fifty-seven years ago that day, and while he was talking two other members of the Class, Walter Todd and Karl Wilhelm, came from the wings with a three-ply fifty-seven-canded cake. Roscoe C. (Pink) Edlund '09 made the formal presentation to Dr. Farrand, a feature that was quite obviously a complete surprise to the President. In his response following the demonstration which followed, Dr. Farrand was outspoken in his appreciation of the tribute.

Gilmour Dobie, who could hardly be termed a frequent orator at alumni gatherings, —another record for '09— followed with a detailed discussion of football problems and ideals at Cornell. He was appropriately introduced by S. H. (Hibby) Ayer '14, who played his own composition, "Cornell Victorious," along with two or three of the ballads for which he is famous.

Maxwell M. Upson '99, as president of his Class, came to the stage with the announcement that another precedent had been established that night by '99 in voting a gift of $25,000 to the University in celebration of the twenty-five-year reunion. Upson went on to explain that although the members of the Class would not entertain they would introduce two of the class daughters, Miss Bub North and Miss Stub Baker. Harold D. '07 and Elbert J. Baker, Jr., '12 from Cleveland repeated the stunt that was one of the hits of the annual banquet in that city last March, a take-off on the famous Duncan Sisters. Some of the audience were fooled by one, some by the other. There were many who refused to be convinced that there were two men.

Dean T. Frederick (Teefy) Crane was the speaker of honor. He not only retired from active teaching in 1909, but in President Schurman's absence that year delivered the Commencement address. The Class gave further evidence of their affection on Saturday night when they announced that with Dean Crane's permission they would commission Professor Olaf M. Brauner to paint his portrait, for presentation to the University. Dean Crane spoke in his usual inimitable way, reminiscent of eighty years, and enthusiastic for the future of Cornell.

ADDITIONS TO STAFF

The Committee on General Administration of the Board of Trustees at its regular meeting in Ithaca on June 7 confirmed two changes in the Faculty of the Summer Session, ratified the appointment of five new instructors, and formally accepted the gift of $5,000 to the School of Civil Engineering by the will of Charles H. Baker '86, which was announced in the ALUMNI NEWS of May 8. Mr. Baker, it will be recalled, was the founder of the Fuertes Memorial Prizes in Public Speaking, which are awarded to students in the Colleges of Engineering and Architecture.

The Committee confirmed the substitution in the Summer Session of Professor William E. Lunt, formerly at Cornell and now professor of English constitutional history at Haverford College, to teach history in the place of Professor Arthur F. Pollard of the University of London, who is unable to come. It also ratified the appointment of Professor Harold F. Smart of the University of North Carolina to teach philosophy in place of Professor George H. Sabine of Ohio State University.

The appointment of the following instructors was announced: Putnam F. Jones '24, English; Jose B. Alemany, William R. Kingerly, and Delbert E. Keenan '22, Romance languages; and William M. Rogers, histology and embryology.

PROFESSOR CARL CRANDALL '12 of the College of Engineering and city engineer of Ithaca, is engineer for the Finger Lakes State Park Commission, of which Robert H. Treman '78 is chairman.

Alumni Fund Increases

Cornellian Council Reports Largest Total of Subscriptions This Year in History —ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Walter L. Todd '09 was elected president of the Cornellian Council and Harrison D. McFadden '94 was elected vice-president at the annual meeting held in Ithaca on June 14. Beside these officers, the following were elected to the executive committee: J. DuPratt White '90, Jervis Langdon '97, Frank E. Gannett '98, George D. Crofts '01, and Creed W. Fulton '09.

The executive committee announced that more had been collected for the Alumni Fund this year than in any year since the beginning of the Council. The total amount collected will be announced in the ALUMNI NEWS after the close of the fiscal year on June 30.

The Council elected Carl D. Fisher '00 of Denver and Neal D. Becker '05 of New York as new members at large, and re-elected the following: Archibald S. Downey '96 of Seattle, Edward S. Sanderson '94 of Waterbury, Connecticut, Frank G. Tallman '80 of Wilmington, Delaware, Frank E. Gannett '98 of Rochester, Henry M. Robinson '90 of Los Angeles, and Paul E. Lesh '06 of Washington.

The Council voted to recommend to the Board of Trustees that of the net cash balance in the Alumni Fund at the end of the present fiscal year the Board appropriate $10,000 to be used for the further cost of construction of Boldt Hall; that they appropriate from such funds the salary of the Alumni Representative; that they add to the Cornell Alumni Endowment Fund the sums given this year for permanent endowment; and that the balance of the Alumni Fund be used as an emergency fund.

The following report of Alumni Fund campaigns to June 1 was made to the Council by the executive committee:

Nearly $40,000 in new subscriptions to the Alumni Fund had been sent in through the Cornellian Council up to June 1 of this year and most of these subscriptions have been made on an annual basis. The first campaign to be completed was that covering the Rochester district in which over $13,000 in new pledges was obtained. Following this, campaigns were completed in Delaware, Maryland, and Cincinnati, Ohio.

In Maryland additional subscriptions totaling approximately $1,500 annually were obtained; in Delaware the new subscriptions totaled about the same amount, and in Cincinnati $1,245 was made in new pledges, bringing the annual subscriptions of the Cincinnati Cornellians up to nearly $2,000 a year.

Cornellians in Michigan have turned in new pledges totaling $4,000 a year, which brings the annual income to the Alumni Fund from Michigan to $5,700 a year.

The Chicago committee has already turned in subscriptions totaling over $6,000 a year and its efforts will be continued until the end of the fiscal year.

To June 1 New England Cornellians had reported new pledges totaling nearly $5,000 annually, Buffalo and Western New York had reported nearly $3,000 a year, and Syracuse had turned in approximately $1,000.

Committees have also been appointed and are at work in St. Louis, Kansas City, Wichita, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Salt Lake City, and Omaha.

More than $7,000 in new annual subscriptions has been sent in response to the appeal contained in the Cornellian Council Bulletin and in response to letters.

CLASS SECRETARIES MEET

At the annual meeting of the Cornell Association of Class Secretaries, held on June 14 in Goldwin Smith Hall, with thirty-six classes represented by their secretaries or delegates, William F. Atkinson '95, of Brooklyn, was elected president of the Association for the ensuing year. He succeeds Andrew J. Whinery '10, who had been re-elected for the three terms from 1921 to 1924. Robert E. Treman '09 was elected vice-president, Professor Clark S. Northup '93, treasurer, Foster M. Coffin '12, secretary, and, as members of the executive committee, Mrs. R. Warren Sailor (Queenie Horton) '09, William O. Kerr '77, and Professor Henry N. Odgen '89.

Dr. Henry P. de Forest '84 reported as chairman of the committee appointed at the mid-winter meeting to consider the adoption of a standard class flag. He submitted an exhaustive report following communications with the War Department and with leading flag manufacturers on the matter of styles and sizes. The matter will come up for final consideration at the meeting in New York next December.

LAY UNION CORNERSTONE

With simple ceremonies attended by many alumni back for reunions as well as by seniors and their guests, President Farrand laid the cornerstone of the Cornell Union on Sunday afternoon, June 15. Mrs. Willard D. Straight, the donor of the building, was prevented by illness from being present, but she was represented by a party of a dozen of her friends, including her personal secretary, Miss Anna Bogue, the architect, Mr. Delano, and Mr. Straight's biographer, Herbert Croly, editor of The New Republic.

Dr. Shailer Mathews, the baccalaureate minister, opened the ceremonies with an invocation, and Arthur F. Brinckerhoff '02, who was one of Willard Straight's most intimate friends, gave the principal address. Judge Frank H. Hiscock '75, chairman of the Board of Trustees, presided. Within the cornerstone of the new building was a box containing the following articles:

A copy of the letter from Mrs. Willard Straight to the President in which she offers to give to Cornell University the sum of approximately $1,000,000 for the erection of a Student Union at Cornell; a copy of the resolutions of the Trustees accepting this gift; a copy of the recent biography of the late Willard Straight by Croly, published by the MacMillan Company; a copy of THE CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS which announces the gift of Mrs. Willard Straight for the Student Union; a copy of the ALUMNI NEWS containing the announcement of the building plans after the contracts were let; copies of the Cornell Sun containing the announcement of the gift and the building plans; a statement giving the date of the laying of the cornerstone and the names of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds, the architects, the engineers, and the builders; a copy of each of the University publications for this year; a photograph of Willard Straight in uniform; some recent views of the Campus; an architect's sketch of the building; copies of The Cornell Era containing articles on the need of a Student Union at Cornell.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

Rochester Women

The Cornell Women's Club of Rochester held its annual meeting in the Blue Room of the Hotel Seneca on June 7, following luncheon. Eighteen were present. The following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Elisabeth Keiper '21; vice-president, Frances Cuffe '17; secretary-treasurer, Marion Fish '23. Mrs. Charles W. Curtis '88 was elected delegate to the June meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, and Hester A. Austin '16, delegate to the convention of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs. It was decided to raise the membership dues of the club to two dollars a year, in order to meet the expenditures necessitated by the enlarged program for the coming year. The club regrets the loss of Evelyn Davis '22, retiring secretary-treasurer who left Rochester permanently this month, and whose marriage to Myron G. Fincher '20, will take place shortly. Mrs. Walter A. Calihan (Anna T. Messer)

'05 extended an invitation to the club to hold a July picnic meeting at her summer home in Beach Avenue on the lake shore, and it is planned that the next meeting shall take this form.

Western Pennsylvania

E. Willis Whited '17, secretary of the Cornell University Association of Western Pennsylvania, writes us as follows, correcting the previous account of the annual banquet of the Association:

"The annual banquet of the Cornell University Association of Western Pennsylvania was a big success, but the press agent is in disgrace. One of the features of the evening was a quartet made up of Karl Gass, Bunny Ramsburg, Don McCutcheon, and Alex Slocum. By some twist of fate in the story of the banquet in the ALUMNI NEWS for May 15, Alex's name was scratched and Eddie Goodwillie's substituted. The quartet was a great success and your correspondent wants to apologize for the mistake he made in getting the names mixed.

THE TREND OF REUNIONS

IT is a fair question whether or not reunions such as those of last week are exhibiting a tendency toward misplaced emphasis. Does the hanging up of records constitute sociability, and is tonnage the criterion of excellence?

These are questions only in an academic sense. The vast majority of those who had the good judgment to be present last week will answer savagely, boisterously, or jubilantly, according to their various wents, in the affirmative.

The little minority perhaps has an apathy toward confusion, band music, seas of faces, and the skirl of bagpipes, and might prefer more seclusion and not more than a handful of companions, preferably one. To them, the answer is that Ithaca is the world's most satisfactory summer resort for Cornellians, and not yet sufficiently widely advertised to have become noisy and confusing.

It is becoming obvious that the large reunions are the sociable reunions, now that the classes hang together as units in residential halls, and in general are on a basis of real democracy. It is equally clear that the small reunion that is small because its committee has failed in its duty, is a wash-out and will eventually not be tolerated. Class secretaries who fail to produce a respectable tonnage will be losing their crowns. Committees who do not design a distinctive costume and pro-ent will get the "hook." The host class that fills Bailey Hall for a rally and doesn't put brains into the program will be the laughing stock of its contemporaries.

The dormitory is the thing. Fortunately the supply of dormitories is proportional to the number of alumni who are enthusiastic about them, and as the numbers present at reunions increase, the dormitory system will increase to keep pace. A wise class that wants to be sure of a dormitory ten years hence will save up and build one. Many an alumnus can afford to endow a room and will get a big kick out of coming back to a room with his own name over the door, with the knowledge that it has offered luxurious shelter to many students during his absence.

We look to a greater interest, from the greater reunions, in the affairs of the University and of the alumni association. The Corporation meeting this year was moved to a larger hall. We expect to see it occupying Bailey Hall by next year. President Farrand's confidential chat about Cornell affairs will, if it can be made a fixture, produce this result with only normal effort on anyone's part. The President is a delightful speaker. A confidential statement from him that water positively does run down hill would absolutely fix one's attention; but when he warms up to his subject and gives facts and voices hopes that cannot well be published but that Cornellians should all hear and understand, the event becomes a rare treat and the meeting is headed for real and permanent success.

President Farrand's cooperation plays a part in the building up of reunions that should have equal credit along with the fascination of the dormitories, the increasing number of returning classmates, and all the older and more permanent characteristics of the season and the place that conspire to change, for a few days, a group of hard headed business and professional people into appreciative and sentimental votaries.

that their function in the scheme of the University is something more than attending reunions in large quantities and cheering at athletic contests. Harold Shreve sketched plans for the convention which indicated that New York is anything but the cold-blooded center that some of its critics assert.

Since last Saturday plans have been made to hold the meeting of the Corporation next June in Bailey Hall.

THE MEDICAL COLLEGE in New York on June 12 conferred degrees on fifty-eight. President Farrand gave the Commencement address and conferred the degrees, coming from Deerfield, Massachusetts, where he spoke on June 10 at the one hundred twenty-fifth anniversary

OBITUARY

John W. Pratt '76

News has just been received of the death on February 25, 1922, of John William Pratt.

He came to Cornell in 1872 from Bolivar, N. Y., as a student in the optional course and remained one year.

Eugene H. Preswick '83

Eugene Henry Preswick died at his home in Ithaca on June 4 of valvular heart trouble following an illness of about four weeks.

He was born at Forest Home, N. Y., the son of H. W. and Amelia Mitchell Preswick and descendant of one of the earliest settlers in that section, which adjoins Ithaca. He secured his early education in Ithaca, entering Cornell in 1879 as a student of chemistry, and graduating in 1883 with the degree of B. S. For the next seven years he was an instructor in chemistry. He was a member of Sigma Xi.

Later he was engaged in chemistry work in Pennsylvania and mining in the West, but more recently had been engaged in farming. He made his home in Ithaca with his sister, Miss Cornelia Preswick, who is his only near relative surviving.

Daniel A. Campbell '84

Word has just arrived of the death at Fort Wayne, Ind., on November 27, 1920, of Daniel Alexander Campbell.

He came to Cornell in 1880 from Fort Wayne as a student of civil engineering and remained one year.

Robert G. Batchelor '04

News of the death in June, 1921, of Robert Gilbert Batchelor has recently arrived.

He was born on October 7, 1882, at Holyoke, Mass., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Batchelor. After getting his early education there and graduating from the Holyoke High School, he came to Cornell in 1900 as a student of mechanical engineering and remained one year.

Herman D. Hirsch '09

Herman David Hirsch died on August 30, 1922, at Cape Town, South Africa, it has been learned.

He was born on October 19, 1886, in Brooklyn, N. Y., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hirsch. He attended the Boys' High School, then came to Cornell in 1905 as a student of civil engineering and graduated in 1909 with the degree of C. E. He was a member of the Civil Engineering Association, the Civic Club, Congress, and the Deutscher Verein.

After leaving college, he was employed by the United States Steel Products Company, which sent him to South Africa.

Dorothy Voorhees '23

Dorothy Voorhees died at her home in Auburn, N. Y., on April 29 last, following several weeks of failing health.

Auburn, N. Y., the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sheldon Voorhees. After graduating from the Auburn Academic High School, she entered Cornell in 1919 and graduated from the College of Agriculture with the degree of B. S. in 1923. She was a member of Delta Delta Delta and Raven and Serpent. She was also a member of the Y. W. C. A., the Cabinet, and the Womens' Mandolin Club.

Prior to her death she has been doing welfare work for the American Red Cross in Texas, returning to her home in Auburn last December.

Charles H. Smithers '27

Charles Herbert Smithers died in the Cornell Infirmary on June 6 after several weeks' illness.

He was born in Millburn, N. J., on July 6, 1904, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smithers. After attending school there and Perkiomen High School at Pennsburg, Pa., he entered Cornell last fall as a student of engineering. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta.

ATHLETICS

Varsity Defeats Alumni

The Cornell varsity nine wound up its home season Saturday afternoon on Hoy Field by defeating the Alumni in their annual game by an 8 to 3 score. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning to permit the varsity to catch a train for Hanover where they were scheduled to play Dartmouth on Monday.

In Saturday's game Coach Carney used four varsity twirlers, while two pitchers were used by the Grads. Whitney started the game for the varsity and was succeeded in order by Henderson, Harrington, and Milligan. Clyde Russell started for the Alumni and pitched five innings, being succeeded by Jack Maloney.

Heavy hitting featured the contest. The varsity batters connected for three doubles and two triples while the Alumni registered three doubles and a triple.

The varsity took the lead in the second inning with four runs and was never headed. Two passes, two errors by Russell, a passed ball, and a single by Dupree account for the scoring. In the fourth inning each team scored two runs. The Alumni tallied when Ludwig doubled and came home on Bills' double. Kaw was safe on a fielder's choice and scored on Cowan's double. Clarey's error, a pass, and Frantz' triple gave the varsity its two runs.

A single by Davis and doubles by Tone and Henderson gave the varsity two more runs in the last of the fifth. The alumni scored their final run in the eighth on Bill's single, Hoeckleman's single, and an error by Davis.

In fencing the varsity letter was awarded to G. A. Fletcher and the insignia to H. B. Kerr, L. E. Packer, R. S. Coleman, and A. J. Lautz.

LITERARY REVIEW

Milton on Poetry

Milton's Theory of Poetry and Fine Art: an Essay with a Collection of Illustrative Passages from His Works. By Ida Langdon, A.M. '10, Ph.D. '12, Associate Professor of English Literature in Elmira College. New Haven. Yale University Press. 1924. 23.2 cm., pp. xii, 342. Cornell Studies in English viii.

Miss Langdon has added a creditable monograph to the series of Cornell Studies in English. Her essay fills about 175 pages, while the illustrative passages cited fill 146 pages. One hardly expected to find Milton saying so much about fine art. As a matter of fact, he thought a good deal about literary art; and it thus becomes a task of some importance to ascertain what he thought.

The author begins with a general discussion of Milton's ideas of art. He was a stickler for form; form and function were closely related. With a guiding faith ultimately Platonic he rigorously associated outer beauty or ugliness with an inner counterpart. In Paradise Lost his conception of the interrelation of spirit and substance, soul and body, reaches poetic sublimity.

We are somewhat surprised to find Milton influencing landscape architecture; but there seems to be some ground for believing that certain passages in his poems gave his century timely encouragement and perhaps definite suggestions for a marked change in method—the change from artificiality to realism. It is true that his right to a foremost place in this movement has been challenged in favor of Tasso and Bacon; but that Milton had some unconscious part in it may well be believed. He had also something to say about architecture and music, being in the latter art an expert. But he thought more about poetry than any other of the arts.

What was Milton's attitude toward the dogma, "The poet is born, not made"? And what did he think of the "fine frenzy"? Dr. Langdon answers that according to Milton "neither nature alone, nor art alone, can produce a great poet," but that to an original gift there must be joined a capacity for learned pains. In this attitude Milton agrees with Aristotle and Horace.

Moreover, he who strives for perfection in poetry, as in other arts, is helping to build the state. For civilization and the arts prosper together; and to the freedom and vitality of the state the arts steadily contribute. The poet is thus a builder of society.

Milton's ideal poet combined three qualities: an original bent, an ability for steady and accurate observation, and a capacity for sustained application. He must have leisure, which he was to employ wisely; he was to undergo a rigorous training. And he was to acquire experience—not of the ordinary sort, but rather "that imaginative insight largely won through sympathetic study" and perfected by contemplation. Finally, "he who would not be frustrated of his hope to write well hereafter in laudable things ought himself to be a true poem, that is, a composition and pattern of the best and honorablest things." The great artist is morally sound and healthy.

Miss Langdon not only has contributed a highly intelligent discussion of the problem of Milton's attitude toward his art, but has done scholarship good service by systematically presenting Milton's scattered utterances on these matters. There is a good bibliography and index.

A Harvard Story

None So Blind. By Albert Parker Fitch. New York. Macmillan. 1924. 21 cm., pp. vi, 366. Price, $2.50.

This is both a well written and an interesting story. The scene is Harvard, with its many types, its traditions, its loyalties. The three persons of the tragedy are Felicia Morland, daughter of an aristocratic old Harvard family, Percy Barrett, an instructor in French and a member of the more aristocratic class, and Richard Blaisdell, a senior from a plebeian New York family, who, because of some freshman disillusionments, has gone wrong and plunged into dissipation. He reforms, however, and comes back. The story of his love for Felicia is told with rare skill and feeling. The end of the story is pathetic and moving. But this is more than a Harvard yarn; it is a human document. It touches with insight upon the insolence of caste, the accursed smugness of ultra-conservatism, the failure of the elders to understand the point of view of the younger generation,—and the futility of some phases of our academic activity. It holds a mirror up to nature; and sometimes a look in the glass, even when not pleasant, is useful. There is fine artistry in the workmanship of the book.

THE PRIZE given by Charles Lathrop Pack to be awarded at the discretion of the Forestry Department of the College of Agriculture to the senior in that Department who has made the best all-around record for the year was this year divided between David B. Cook of Albany and James E. Davis of West Albany. The Charles Lathrop Pack Foundation Forestry Prize, awarded annually for the best essay dealing with forestry, was awarded, as announced in an earlier issue of the ALUMNI NEWS, to John R. Curry '24 of Blue Mountain Lake, for his essay, "The Forestry Idea."

To you capitalists — the class of '24

Your college training is in truth a capital. Its value is not fixed, but depends on the way you invest it.

Some men demand a quick return — a high percentage of profit. Others look more to the solidity of the investment.

The man of speculative mind may stake all on the lure of a high starting salary, without a thought to the company which gives it or where this may lead him in ten years. True, his opportunism may reap exceptional profit; or else a loss.

The man who knows that great things develop slowly will be content with six months' progress in six months' time—provided he is investing that time in a company which offers him a future.

You who are about to invest, satisfy yourself that the security you are getting is gilt-edged.

An Opportunity

WE want to open negotiations with a few men now employed but looking for the opportunities for personal development and increased earnings offered by a dignified selling connection. The kind of man we want is at least twenty-eight years of age and has been out of college four or five years. He has had some selling experience or feels that, with the right training and cooperation, he can develop selling ability. He must be willing to work hard and enthusiastically. He will have an opportunity to earn at least $5,000 the first year and to broaden his contact with business men.

You need not necessarily be desirous of making an immediate change. We want to get thoroughly acquainted with you and your qualifications, give you full information concerning our work, and arrange for a personal interview before concluding final arrangements. Our idea is to have you available to take over a vacancy when it occurs on thirty days' notice to your present organization. Write fully to

There are books you should ex- amine when you come to Ithaca.

There are books about Cornell University and books by Cornellians that are attracting considerable attention. You should know about these books. An hour spent at the Co-op would enable you to examine the table of contents of each. A few of the titles are: "Concerning Cornell," "Cornell Rowing," "Autobiography of Andrew D. White," "Cornell Verse" and "Modern Gypsies."

"Shield" Chocolates Made by Whitman

This is the candy which is so popular at Christmas time and at Commencement time. It is an assortment of first class chocolates but a different assortment of flavors. Candy made by Stephen F. Whitman & Son is good candy.

Book Ends and College Jewelry

We suggest that you see the hand hammered "Cornell" bookends. These are made for us by a man who used to live in Holland. Those who have seen them certainly appreciate the value.
