ITHACA, N. Y., OCTOBER 30, 1924

PRICE 12 CENTS

CAMPUS politics simmered and boiled last week until Friday night, when at a mass meeting in Sibley Dome campaign managers nominated their favorite sons for Student Council offices. Nominating petitions had been duly signed by the required number of undergraduates for fifty-three persons to fill the fifteen positions open, presaging, according to the Sun, "an exceedingly close and hotly contested campaign," in which "trifles are likely to decide the elections." Balloting for officers took place on Tuesday of this week, and on Thursday the other members of the Council for the year are being elected. The mass meeting was conducted by Carl F. Wedell '24, secretary of last year's Council and life secretary of his Class.

THE SAGE CHAPEL Preacher for November 2 will be the Rev. Dr. A. Ray Petty, minister of the Judson Memorial Baptist Church, New York.

LECTURES for the week include "Anatole France" by Professor James F. Mason before the Ethics Club on October 28; and "A Few Fundamentals" by Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the Council on Legal Education of the American Bar Association and former president of the Illinois Bar Association and of the Chicago Bar Association, before the Cornell Law Association on November 1.

THE DRAMATIC Club on October 31 and November 1 will present "Cheezo" by Lord Dunsany, "A Sunny Morning" by the Quinteros, and "The Hall of Laughter" by J. B. Rogers.

THE SECOND of the All-Cornell dances, held in the Old Armory on October 25, was a Hallowe'en party.

PRESIDENT FARRAND, Professor Bristow Adams, and the Rev. Hugh A. Moran contributed suggestions to members of the Independent Association at its first meeting of the year, held in Barnes Hall on October 24. The consensus of opinion was that in order to serve its purpose the Association should consist of a number of smaller groups federated together, rather than one organization of approximately eighteen hundred non-fraternity men. Committees were appointed to investigate the question and report at the next meeting, on November 7.

GEORGE F. BAKER, with a party of friends from New York, visited the University and the Baker Laboratory one day last week and was gone before the man on the street knew he had been here.

ROMAINE F. BUTTON '27 of Canastota was run down on University Avenue on October 24 by an unknown woman driving a car. She did not stop to see how badly he was hurt, although he was thrown to the pavement and suffered a dislocated hip and ankle. Another passing motorist picked him up and took him to the Infirmary. Button was crossing the street after dark near Morse Hall, directly under an arc light, and the car which hit him is said to have been running without lights.

A STRAW VOTE taken among women students last week resulted in 481 of the 694 votes cast being for Coolidge, 118 for Davis, and 95 for La Follette.

HOWARD B. HOLLISTER, proprietor of the Triangle Book Store in Sheldon Court, died in Ithaca on October 13. Older alumni will remember him as associated with James B. Taylor in the Corner Book Store before he purchased the branch on the Hill three years ago.

THE ETHICS CLUB at its first meeting of the year, held on October 14 at the Cosmopolitan Club, heard Professor Nathaniel Schmidt discuss "Ethical Aspects of the Political Issues."

THE ANNUAL cross country meet of the New York State Public High School Athletic Association will be conducted by the Cornell Athletic Association in Ithaca on November 8, and the Association's annual track meet will be held on Schoellkopf Field on June 6, 1925. The cross country run is open only to member schools of the Association, but it will be held at the same time as the annual invitation interscholastic race of the Athletic Association, which is open to all high schools. Contestants will be entertained in fraternity houses, and prizes will be given both by the Athletic Association and the State organization.

A CONFERENCE of members of the State-wide Extension Service in agriculture and home economics, held at the College of Agriculture this week, brought to Ithaca many alumni among the county agents and representatives of State departments and farmers' cooperative organizations. President Farrand addressed the opening session on Monday, and most of the visitors are staying for the Columbia game on Saturday.

A SMALL BLAZE in the kitchen of the Tau Epsilon Phi House on Stewart Avenue on October 20 was extinguished by the Ithaca Fire Department before much damage was done.

PROGRESSIVES of the University met in Barnes Hall on October 23 to hear addresses by Professor Everett L. Hunt and H. W. Chatfield, chairman of the Tompkins County LaFollette-Wheeler Committee. Kenneth W. Greenawalt '27 of Denver, Colorado, is president of the Cornell LaFollette-Wheeler Club, which had Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation, for its speaker this week.

THE DEBATING TEAM which represents Cornell in Bailey Hall on October 31 consists of Martin Rosenblum '25 of Middletown, for LaFollette; Whitney M. Trousdale '25 of Rome, Pennsylvania, for Coolidge; and Frank C. Monaghan, Jr., '27 of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, for Davis. Each of these men has an ally for his candidate from Colgate, and the issue is decided by vote of the audience, an idea for intercollegiate debates borrowed from the British teams.

TWO MORE BABIES have come to the School of Home Economics to be cared for during the year by senior women in the school as a part of their practice training. They are Mary Jane Domecon, six months old, and Betty Domecon, age one year, who was brought from a hospital where she had been ill with pneumonia for some time. These two bring the total of "Domecon babies" to eight.

PIERRE LE C. DE TRELAN, of Belou, Le Mans, Sarthe, France, is registered this year as a special student in the College of Agriculture, and is studying American industrial methods as a Fellow of the Committee for Relief in Belgium. He has been a student at Beauvaix University, located near Paris.

SAGE CHAPEL on October 25 was the scene of the wedding of Lucy I. Cursons '24 of Buffalo and Stuart B. Kellogg '24 of Greene. All the members of the bridal party were graduates or undergraduates of the University. The ceremony was followed by a reception and dance at the Delta Gamma House. Kellogg is a member of Sigma Pi and Scabbard and Blade and in his senior year was lieutenant colonel of the R. O. T. C. infantry unit. Since graduation he has been manager of the Sherwood Inn at Greene, where he and Mrs. Kellogg will make their home.

A NEGATIVE VOTE was given by the audience to the question, "Resolved: that Freshman Rules Should Be Abolished," after the question had been argued by members of the Freshman Debate Club in Goldwin Smith on October 23.

THE CORNELL GRAPHIC announces the election to its art staff of Helen Hendrickson '26 of Cortland and Hugh C. Troy, Jr., '25, of Ithaca, son of Professor Troy '95 of the Faculty.

FRESHMEN gathered in Barnes Hall on October 21 for their third meeting of the year to hear Louis A. Fuertes '97, who illustrated his talk with his own drawings.

Why Come to Convention?

Frank Sullivan '14 of New York World Characteristically Answers the Question for all Alumni

All loyal Cornell alumni certainly ought to beg, borrow, or steal the price to get to this, now, coming alumni convention on November 14 and 15 down here in, to coin a phrase, "Bagdad-on-the-Subway."

A good many of us boys down this way have sort of decided to steal ours, because we are too proud to beg, and who ever heard of anybody letting a Cornell slicker borrow anything from him? Personally, if I may be pardoned for being personal, I shall be among those who will steal, and just to demonstrate that I have not lost that spirit of loyalty, cooperation, stick-to-itiveness, aplomb, verve, savoir faire, and je ne sais quoi that characterized the grand old Class of 1914 and made it, in a manner of speaking, the Class of Classes, I shall be glad to steal the price for any brother of 1914 who has reformed, or lost his technique.

But the point is, it does a fellow good to forget the wife and the kiddies and the mortgage and all that sort of thing, you know, what-what, and get together with the old bunch once in a while and talk over the old times and sing the old songs. Now there are a lot of fellows I'd like to see again. For instance, that lizard from C.E., '15 who asked me to have an expensive drink with him in the Dutch one night—I think, if I remember right, it was late November or early October, 1913—and then took sick with vertigo before he had paid Red for the round. I want that fifteen cents back. It isn't the money so much, as the principle of the thing.

Of course the songs probably will sound a bit different, because lots of our voices have changed since the dear old days, and a good many of us, I guess, would sound pretty much out of place in a boy soprano choir, wouldn't we? Dear, dear, just merely talking about it makes one sentimental. I am thinking, perhaps a bit sadly, of Sunday morning chapel. They say Sage Chapel was very pretty inside, and I often meant to drop in. I think I should have been a better man today if I had gone to chapel once or twice during those four years, and I guess there are few "Fellow Caw-nell-yans" (as dear, good old Bull Durham would so aptly put it) who will say me nay on that.

But to get back to the convention. It will be a regular convention, just like that splendid, enthusiastic Democratic convention we had at Madison Square Garden last June. Maybe it will turn out to be another Democratic Convention; God forbid. There will be speeches, and somebody will creep up behind me and ask me why I never paid my pledge to my fraternity, and then I will have to give him a sock in the jaw. There are some questions a gentleman does not ask another gentleman.

It will not be dressy. The sessions are to be entirely informal, and anything beyond one, good, durable, celluloid collar will really amount to excess baggage.

As for the entertainment part, I know two gals from the Follies, who are great Cornell enthusiasts, having played Ithaca with De Wolf Hopper in Wang in 1904, and they tell me that they would be glad to accompany any two alumni, preferably from the Classes of '68 or '69, to the Aquarium some afternoon, provided the boys promise to behave themselves.

SPORT STUFF

The opening of the pheasant season on Thursday was the occasion of many casualties. One student shot his toe off. Two others were placed in strong lodgings for shooting without a license. Mr. Walter Asche, the well known sportsman and probably the best colored cook in Ithaca, was painfully fined for a similar omission.

But the most regrettable incident of the day was the arrest of two professors on the charge of shooting a hen pheasant against the statute therein made and provided. The defendants clearly established their innocence of all knowledge of the victim's gender and the absence of any evil intent on their part. Nevertheless a fine of $27.50 was imposed.

The community is aroused over this incident. It is pointed out that the professors are distinguished scholars, gentlemen of delicacy of feeling and bachelors withal. Any statute which requires men of this type to make an instantaneous determination of sex amid the distractions of the hunting field and holds them responsible for the slightest error in the settlement of such a delicate and embarrassing question is generally regarded as altogether too drastic.

R. B.

CORNELL WOMEN were among those invited from fifteen colleges and universities to take part in an intercollegiate political conference at Vassar College on October 18 to consider national issues.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS held its first meeting of the year in Barnes Hall on October 20.

COACH WALTER C. O'CONNELL '11 and Manager Harrison L. Goodman '26 of Harriman, Tennessee, of the wrestling team represented Cornell at a conference of the Intercollegiate Wrestling League held in New York on October 25.

OCTOBER 20 was the third anniversary of the inauguration of Livingston Farrand as President of Cornell.

PROFESSOR A. BERNARD RECKNAGEL addressed the Adirondack Club at its first meeting of the year, held on October 21.

The Convention Program

Cornell Club in New York Extends Privileges for Four Days to Visitors at Annual Meeting

However complete may be the other details of their arrangements, convention committees never feel that they have quite succeeded unless they can show attendance figures outdistancing all previous records. That is one of the reasons why Chairman Sanderson and his co-workers are already laying modest claims that the Fifth Annual Convention of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, to be held at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York on November 14 and 15, will be an outstanding success. Advance information makes the prediction safe that there will not only be more alumni registered in New York than have attended the previous conventions in Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and Cleveland, but that more local clubs than ever before will be represented by delegates. Buffalo last year, with forty clubs represented, almost doubled the previous high record, the twenty-one in Pittsburgh of 1922. The New York meeting will attract more than fifty clubs. Delegates of forty clubs last fall in Buffalo represented 4,401 alumni who could not attend the Convention but who were paid-up members by virtue of the per capita assessments paid by the clubs.

Although the announced days of the Convention are Friday and Saturday, November 14 and 15, the party will start on Thursday and run through Sunday. The Cornell Club of New York, which will extend its house privileges to the visitors during those four days, will offer its annual fall smoker Thursday night, at the clubhouse, 245 Madison Avenue, corner of Thirty-eighth Street. All visiting Cornell men are invited. The entertainment, in charge of John E. (Johnnie) Ross '19, will include a Dartmouth quartet as well as its quota of Cornell stunsters.

The Cornell women in the Metropolitan district, through the Cornell Women's Club of New York, invite Cornell women visiting the convention to an informal pre-convention party on Thursday evening. It is hoped that a large number of Cornell women will plan to be in New York early enough for this gathering. Those who expect to attend are requested to send word to Mrs. Herbert D. Williams (Nina Van Dine) '10, 202 Riverside Drive, as soon as possible.

Walter P. Cooke '91, as president of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, will call the Convention to order at 10.30 Friday morning, at headquarters in the Hotel Roosevelt, the new hotel opened last month on the block bounded by Madison and Vanderbilt Avenues, and Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth Streets. The second session will open at 2.30 p.m. The business of the day will include the election of twelve regional directors of the Corporation, the Convention by its vote to select that number from the men and women who have been nominated from the various sections of the country. Other matters of particular interest to alumni will be presented. One item is the formal change of the name of the Cornell Alumni Corporation from its former title, Associate Alumni of Cornell University. Luncheon will be served at 1.15.

The banquet Friday night will take the place of the usual annual banquet of the Cornell men of New York. It will be held in the grand ballroom of The Roosevelt, and every indication is that the attendance figures of last December in New York, when more than nine hundred crowded into the Biltmore, will be beaten. Two of the speakers will be President Farrand and President Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth.

Dr. Walter L. Niles '02, Dean of the Medical College in New York, will be the principal speaker at the business session on Saturday morning. Following this meeting, and a hasty lunch at the hotel, auto busses provided by the committee will transport the party to the Dartmouth-Cornell football game at the Polo Grounds.

Several thousand alumni will receive cards to be returned to the committee with information including dates of arrival and accommodations required at the Hotel Roosevelt. Alumni who do not receive these cards should communicate with the chairman of the Convention committee, Edwin N. Sanderson '87, 52 William Street, New York. Questions regarding the Convention should be addressed to Sanderson or to Foster M. Coffin '12, at the Alumni Office in Morrill Hall, Ithaca.

THE FIRST SNOW STORM of the season visited Ithaca on October 20 and lasted for several minutes.

FIVE CORNELLIANs were reelected on October 20 as trustees of the Ithaca City Hospital Association. They are Mrs. Farrand, Charles D. Bostwick '92, Franklin C. Cornell '89, Ebenezer T. Turner '83, and Mynderse Van Cleef '74.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

Cleveland

Fifty-two Cornellians were present at the regular luncheon meeting held at the Hotel Statler in Cleveland on October 23, to hear S. J. Kornhauser of the Republican Headquarters. Joseph K. Bole '00, vice-president of the Cleveland Club, brought back some intimate glimpses of Cornell from a recent visit to Ithaca.

At the meeting on October 30, the Democratic Party was to be represented by a speaker.

Michigan

Fifty were present at the weekly Cornell luncheon in Detroit on October 16. In the absence of President Fred M. Randall '00, who was in Chicago, Arthur L. Rose '10, newly elected vice-president for this year, presided.

An interesting talk on the political situation of Detroit was given by Joseph A. Martin, former acting mayor, who is now running for mayor. Most of his talk was devoted to the working of the budget system in a city of the size of Detroit.

Westchester County

President Farrand was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Cornell men of Westchester County, New York, held at the Scarsdale Golf Club on October 16. Well over one hundred men attended. Robert E. Coulson '09 was toastmaster. The other speakers were Judge William F. Bleakley '04, and R. Harold Shreve '02, president of the Cornell Club of New York. Louis Drago '19 provided impersonations, and professional music and congregational singing filled in the odd moments. Frederick R. Slater '94 was elected president of the Cornell Westchester Association for this year to succeed Dr. Walter H. McNeill, Jr., '10.

Twenty-five men came out early for the golf tournament. At the banquet that night, Dr. McNeill presented prizes to Richard M. Tolin '05, for the low gross score, to Fielder J. (Squire) Coffin '08, for the first low net score, and to John H. Duncan '19 for the second low net.

Rochester Women

The Cornell Women's Club of Rochester held a benefit bridge party on Saturday afternoon, October 11, at the home of Miss Elisabeth Keiper '21, president of the Club. The purpose of the party was to raise money for the special fund administered by Dean Georgia L. White '96 to aid girls who are working their way through the University, and to whom a little outside financial assistance may give an opportunity to participate to a greater extent in college activities. The Rochester women hope that other functions planned for later will swell the fund thus started. Mrs. Dallas M. Van Horn (Ruth Newman) '21, Mrs. Robert P. Hamilton (Ruth Cook) '24, Frances I. Cuffe '17, and Marion Fish '23 formed the committee in charge of the bridge party, which was pronounced a decided success.

Mrs. Marvin R. Dye (Miriam Kelley) '17, was the hostess at the regular October meeting of the Club, which was held on October 4 at her home.

Southern California

At the annual meeting of the Cornell Club of Southern California held October 14, officers for the coming year were elected as follows: president, George L. Hoxie '92; vice-president, Sylvanus B. Marston '07; secretary-treasurer, H. Roy Kelley '15.

Carl J. Herbold '10 was elected member of the executive committee for a two-year term in place of Roy V. Rhodes '01, whose term expired. William H. Jameson '16 holds over his office as member of the executive committee for another year.

A sweepstakes golf tournament will be held by the Club in the near future. Paul Overton '00 and Sterling C. Lines '98, as captains, will select teams from the list of entries. The losing team will stand for the dinner.

LITERARY REVIEW

A Moral Philosopher

The Value and Dignity of Human Life as Shown in the Striving and Suffering of the Individual. By Charles Gray Shaw '94, Professor of Philosophy in New York University. Boston. The Four Seas Company. 1924. 19 cm., pp. 403. Price, $3.

In this volume, originally published in 1911, the product of wide reading and deep thinking, the learned author tries to answer one of the oldest of questions. What is the use of living? Is there really some far-off, divine event toward which the whole moves, or are we squirrels in a revolving cage, or, as Stevenson put it in "Will of the Mill," "rats in a trap?" Of course it is impossible and will doubtless always be impossible to answer these questions to our complete satisfaction; but is there any sort of answer conceivable which will at least partially satisfy us?

Professor Shaw surveys the long ethical history of the race. Going back as far as we can, we find man one with nature, and pleasure (in the sense of the absence of pain, hunger, cold, and the like) apparently his highest object in life. By and by he begins to think. If some pleasure is good, more pleasure (a sense of greater security) is better. But with the growth of mind, grows also the spirit. Something calls man, and he draws away from the cattle, who still find complete pleasure in a full stomach and a warm bed. Consciousness of the vast invisible world of spirits dawns upon the terrified mind of man. Taboo begins its work; the gods must be obeyed. So he unconsciously begins to build character. The consciousness of this process, in which he pleases the gods (or God) gives him a pleasure (happiness) which he pronounces higher and greater in the long run than the delights of the flesh. Yet even the happiness he now has does not completely satisfy him. And his lower desires again and again surge over him and he is submerged in the deep waters of sense. His will, too, clashes with the wills of others who think in different ways to satisfy the demands of deity; and thus arises the need of social regulation, or government. He wills righteousness, the performance of duty, for others as well as for himself; the Fifteenth and Eighteenth Amendments are born. He also wills happiness for others and when he has forgot his own case in this strife for the welfare of others, his humanity is complete. Between any of these stages in the spiritual development of man there is no break, no sharp dividing line. Hedonism, the pursuit of pleasure (always to be understood as including the absence of pain) merges into eudaimonia or happiness; happiness of self always merges into happiness of the race of which self forms a part. And who shall say how far back in the dim history of mankind some consciousness of this ideal began to dawn; or how long it will be before the mere lust of the flesh shall cease to be somewhere in the world the main pursuit of lower men?

What shall be man's attitude toward this imperfect world, which does so much to drag him down from his upward striving? To renounce the world utterly, complete Entsagung, is to live only a partial life; for our life was meant to be conditioned by the world in which we live. We must somehow manage to accept the world in its totality: that is, recognize the world without surrendering ignobly to it. Doing this, shall we find spirit triumphing over sense, as Schopenhauer and Wagner believe will result, or nature triumphing over reason, as Ibsen and Sudermann are inclined to prophesy? Dr. Shaw's view calls for no such either-or. For him "both worship and art apprehend man in his totality, wherein spirit and sense, conscious and unconscious, intellect and will, are strangely mingled to form humanity." And man's strife upward leads him to achieve human dignity.

It is a pity that this reprint of a good book should be so marred by numerous typographical errors. The lack of expert proof-reading is painfully evident. On page 149 there are thirteen errors—most of them in the Greek, to be sure.

Books and Magazine Articles

In The University of California Chronicle for October "The Child: His Nature and His Needs" edited by Professor Michael V. O'Shea '92, of the University of Wisconsin, is reviewed by J. V. Breitwieser.

In The Saturday Evening Post for October 18, Kenneth L. Roberts '08 writes on a subject of great importance, "The First Families of America." Morris Bishop '13 presents "Mother Goose for Infant Intelligentsia."

In The Saturday Review of Literature for October 18, "Materia Critica" by George J. Nathan '04 is reviewed by Professor Homer E. Woodbridge.

In Science for October 10 Dr. David Starr Jordan '72, under the title "As Students Understand It," comments on the lecture system.

To the "Anatolian Papers Presented to Sir William Mitchell Ramsay" Professor Albert T. Olmstead '02 contributes a paper on the Assyrians in Asia Minor, a study preliminary to his "History of Assyria."

In The Journal of Geography for September there is a review of "The Story Key of Geographic Names" by Professor Oscar D. von Engeln '08 and Mrs. Jane McKelway Urquhart '13 (Appleton). We shall notice this book soon.

The Rotarian for October includes an article on "Rotary and Boys' Work" by Hart I. Seely '09, chairman of the Boys' Work Committee of Rotary International.

OBITUARY

Edwin Fitts '91

Edwin Fitts died suddenly at Galion, Ohio, on January 5 last.

He came to Cornell in 1887 as a student of mechanical engineering and graduated in 1891 with the degree of M. E.

For a time he was with the Detroit Stoker Company, but of late years had been chief engineer of the Galion Iron Works, Galion, Ohio.

J. Grove Brown '92

J. Grove Brown died at Kingston, N. Y., on September 16, following an illness of three weeks.

He was born at Harford, N. Y., on December 1, 1867, and after attending the public schools there, came to Cornell in 1888 as a student of mechanical engineering. In 1892 he was graduated with the degree of M. E.

On leaving Cornell he went with the Good Roads Machinery Company of Marathon, N. Y., and there designed the jaw crusher which is now used everywhere in this country. Later he was with the Acme Road Machinery Company but of late years was shop superintendent of the Universal Road Machinery Company at Kingston.

He was a recognized authority on crushers and also designed many improvements to road rollers and other highway machinery. The oil nozzles which are used on high pressure sprayers were designed by him as well as a stone spreader, which is just coming into wide use.

He was married in 1900 to Miss Jessie Smith of Frankfort, who survives him with two sons, G. Cutler Brown '26 and Homer Brown, a daughter, Dorothy H. Brown '25, and a sister, Miss Grace Brown of Ithaca.

He was a member of Kingston Lodge No. 10, F. and A. M., the Knights Templar, and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Robert E. Brandeis '97

Robert Emanuel Brandeis died on July 3 in Louisville, Ky.

He was born in Louisville on June 9, 1874, and after graduating from the Louisville High School, came to Cornell in 1893 as a student of electrical engineering. He graduated in 1897 with the degree of M. E. He was a member of Theta Nu Epsilon.

After leaving the University he was for a time with the New York Telephone Company, then was maintenance of way engineer for the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company in New York. Of late years he had been with the General Equipment Company in Louisville, Ky.

Henry F. Millard '98

Word has just been received of the death on November 16, 1921, of Henry Floyd Millard, of Fair Haven, N. Y.

He was born in England on October 18,

1871, the son of Albert and Mary Davis Millard. His early education was received at the Skaneateles, N. Y., Academy. He entered Cornell in 1895 as a student of law, graduating in 1898 with the degree of LL. B.

On September 28, 1904, he was married to Miss Jennie S. Watts, who survives him with one daughter, Virginia.

Kinsley Twining, Jr., '04

Kinsley Twining, Jr., died in New York on January 28.

He was born in Providence, R. I., on September 9, 1897, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kinsley Twining. He received his early education there and at Morristown, N. J., whither his parents had moved. In 1900, he entered Cornell as a student of law, but remained only one year, leaving to attend the Yale Law School.

He practiced law in New York and Newark, N. J., until war was declared in 1917. Entering the service, he became a major in the airplane production division. In 1919, he entered the import and export business in New York, and was engaged in that at the time of his death. He survived by his wife.

Henry F. Bergman '05

Belated news of the death on February 19, 1923, of Henry Fred Bergman at Lorton, Va., has been received.

He was born in Germany on December 23, 1879, but came to this country early in life and lived with a sister at Grand Island, Mich. He secured some training there, then came to Cascadilla School, from which he entered Cornell in 1901 as a student of mechanical engineering. He remained for two years.

After leaving Cornell, he married Miss Marion Haywood, who survives him with one daughter, Mrs. Marion B. Youngs of Buffalo, N. Y., and two sisters, Mrs. William J. Ziegler, Jr., and Mrs. J. W. Tillinghast of Lorton, Va.

Dorothy Chadwick '14

Mrs. Dorothy Chadwick died on June 22 in New York.

She was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., on December 25, 1891, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon L. Chadwick. She received her early education in that city, graduating from the Girls' High School. In 1900 she entered Cornell as a student in the College of Arts and Sciences and remained for one year, leaving to go to the Brooklyn Training School for Teachers. Some time later, she was married to Eugene Chadwick of Brooklyn.

Alexander K. Miller '18

Alexander K. Miller died in New York on July 20.

He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., on March 18, 1898, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Miller. He received his early education there and graduated from Erasmus Hall High School. In 1914 he entered Cornell as a student in the College of Arts and Sciences and remained until war was declared. Then he joined the Medical Corps and saw service in France, where he was badly shell-shocked and gassed. In 1920 he received the certificate of War Alumnus.

After leaving the service, he became interested in the theater and wrote several plays, in addition to taking part in some and directing others. Shortly before his death he formed a partnership for the production of a play by Konrad Berecovic.

He was buried in Mount Lebanon Cemetery on Long Island. The pall bearers were Louis Goldberg '17, Harold C. Bonoff '18, Bernard Herschfield '18, Jerome Rosenbloom '18, and Samuel Karrakis '18. He is survived by his mother, Dr. Helen Miller, who is a member of the staff of Bellevue Hospital in New York.

William H. Sage Dies

Was Donor of Faculty Pension Fund, Infirmary, and Many Other Gifts to University

William H. Sage, who was one of Cornell's most generous benefactors and was for many years a resident of Ithaca, died on October 23 at his home on Menand's Road, Albany, New York, at the age of eighty years. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Henry W. and Andrew C. Sage, and several grandchildren.

Mr. Sage was the younger son of Henry W. Sage and Susan Linn Sage and was born in Ithaca on January 9, 1844. The family moved to Brooklyn when he was a boy. He attended the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and then went to Yale College, where he graduated in 1865 with high honors, becoming a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He went into business with his father, who was engaged in lumbering on a large scale in Michigan and in Canada. He married Jane Curtin, a daughter of Andrew Curtin, who was at the time of the Civil War Governor of Pennsylvania.

In 1880 Mr. Sage returned to Ithaca to live and built the brick house at 603 East Seneca Street which Delta Gamma now owns. He lived there until 1898, when he moved to Albany. He was a member of the Board of Trustees from 1888 until 1904.

Mr. Sage founded the Professorial Pension Fund with a gift of $150,000. He and his elder brother, the late Dean Sage, jointly gave the University their father's former residence on East State Street for the Infirmary and endowed the building with a gift of $100,000. His gifts for Sage Chapel were the organ and the interior decorations, including the windows and the mosaics in the Memorial Apse, where the bodies of his father and mother are entombed. The stone arch bridge over Cascadilla Creek at the entrance of the Campus is also his gift. He also bought the library of Friedrich Zarncke, about thirteen thousand volumes, and gave it to the University Library.

By direction of President Farrand the flags on the University buildings remained at half-mast until after the funeral, which was held at Albany on October 25.

OFFERS STRAIGHT FELLOWSHIP

The generosity of Mrs. Willard Straight has made possible a research fellowship for study in China, recently announced by the Institute of International Education. The fellowship carries a stipend of $2,000 a year for three years, and will be awarded to an American citizen, either man or woman, who is in good health, has a bachelor's degree and some familiarity with Chinese subjects, either through residence in China or special study in this country; who has a definite purpose to specialize on China with a view to taking as a life work either research in Chinese, or teaching Oriental subjects, or journalism dealing with Far Eastern subjects; and who agrees to give his or her entire time for the duration of the fellowship to the study of Chinese subjects, including the language if necessary for research.

The committee in this country which will administer the fellowship consists of Roger S. Greene, director of the China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation; Kenneth S. Latourette, Yale; R. V. D. Magoffin, New York University; Paul Monroe, Columbia; Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke; and Stephen P. Duggan, director of the Institute of International Education. A committee in China will immediately oversee and direct the studies of the fellow appointed.

Application blanks may be had from Dr. Stephen P. Duggan, Director, The Institute of International Education, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

WILLIAMS has this year 723 students, of whom 150 are seniors, 148 juniors, 175 sophomores, and 250 freshmen.

SYRACUSE has established a specially endowed School of Citizenship and Public affairs as an integral part of its College of Liberal Arts. In time it is expected that there will be opportunities for post-graduate work leading to the doctor's degree. The master's degree will be at once available for a fifth year of work.

RECENT STATISTICS of the class of 1913 at Princeton say that the average annual earnings of the 196 men of the class amount to $6,560, and that other income brings the average annual receipts up to $8,315. Twenty-four men are making $10,000 a year or better.

The Missouri Alumnus for September contains a complete description of the new School of Fine Arts which Missouri has just instituted and of which Professor James T. Quarles, lately of Cornell, will be the head. There is also a portrait of Dean Quarles.

COLUMBIA's extension courses are now reaching more than twenty thousand persons. The authorities are now experimenting with extension courses by radio.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS IT

THE fifth Cornell Convention is an occasion not to be stayed away from lightly. Cornell conventions are proving themselves worth while. Each year there is hung up a new record for attendance of individuals, for representation of Cornell clubs, for interest, and for enjoyment.

This year is to be no exception. Already the advance registration, requisitions for seats at the football game, certificates of representation from clubs, and similar straw ballots indicate that Cornell Conventions are continuing to increase in interest.

Naturally the program for entertainment is under way ahead of the rest of the schedule. With the Dartmouth-Cornell football game as the climax, smokers, golf matches, and the like will provide a holiday that only a busy metropolitan committee, taking its work in characteristic earnest, could equal.

While the two football teams and the rooters are biting their nails in preparation for the big game, the presidents of Dartmouth and Cornell will be leading the Convention into a quieter, and perhaps more productive, form of activity, the discussion of affairs connected with education. Dean Niles will tell of the Medical College. Discussions of the affairs of the University will form an important part of the program as usual. A more detailed list of events will develop as the time approaches.

Meanwhile every alumnus that can attend should prepare to do so. Cornellians have never blindly followed leaders. Independence of thought in alumni affairs is almost a weakness. The fact, therefore, that Cornell conventions have successfully made good with the alumni is sufficient reason for expecting the 1924 Convention to be worth going to.

Track Alumni Visit Campus

Track and cross country stars of other days are returning to Ithaca this fall to help restore the track tradition, to strengthen and encourage the spirit of the squad, and to give to the varsity candidates of this generation the benefit of their experience. Two of them were here over the last week end, Tell S. Berna '12, who still holds the American amateur record in the two-mile run, and H. L. Trube '08, track and cross country champion in his day.

A few weeks ago John S. Hoffmire '16, another two-mile and cross country champion, came back, while early in the fall Victor A. Stibolt '11, John E. Whinery '13, James J. Munns '14, and C. C. (Nick) Carter '22 were here. During the fall and winter other old track men will drop in from time to time.

This concrete evidence of interest on the part of alumni in undergraduate track activities follows the formation in New York a few weeks ago of an Alumni Track Association. Coach Jack Moakey attended this meeting. The track situation was thoroughly discussed and the alumni determined to do all they possibly could to assist Jack and to help educate the present varsity squads in Cornell track tradition and history, with the hope that the morale and spirit of the undergraduates may be improved, and the undergraduates come to realize that with no better advantages or material Cornell has made a brilliant record on the track and that with the right spirit and faithful training, prestige in track can be restored.

ACTING DEAN CORNELIUS BETTEN, Ph. D. '05, was the principal speaker at the first Agricultural Assembly, held in Roberts Hall on October 21.

DELTA THETA PHI, legal fraternity, was addressed by Professor Wallace Notestein on "English Politics" at its first meeting of the year on October 22.

ALUMNI NOTES

'82 B Lit—Residents of Massachusetts have recently been having amusement at the expense of Mayor James M. Curley of Boston. Mayor Curley is charged by a writer in the Boston Herald on October 10 with changes in view on the proposed child labor amendment. He quotes the mayor as saying that the amendment originated in Bolshevism and came from a Russian woman, "Miss Wischnewetsky," and that good Americans should have nothing to do with anything that comes of Russia. The "Miss Wischnewetsky" whom the mayor names is none other than Mrs. Florence Kelley '82, a native of Philadelphia and known for twenty-five years as the patriotic and efficient secretary of the Consumers' League. In early life, Mrs. Kelley married a physician named Wischnewetsky but he died soon after. The mayor apparently overlooked this and also the fact that her father was for years a Congressman in Pennsylvania and heard child labor conditions and laws discussed before she was born.

'90 AB—The Detroit News recently questioned The American Economist because the latter had assailed Justice John Ford '90 of New York for supporting La-Follette and Wheeler in their political campaign this fall. The Economist said about Ford, "He doesn't think straight" and the News recalling that one of Ford's first jobs was with the Economist, declares that "the curious might be inclined to wonder what kind of thinking the Economist fosters."

'90 AM—Phoebe T. Sutliff is a candidate this fall on the Democratic ticket in Ohio for Congressman from the 19th District. Her home is now in Warren, Ohio, where she has long been active in civic and social affairs. She was the first president of the Warren branch of the American Association of University Women.

'97—PhD—Julia S. Orvis has returned from a trip to Honolulu and has resumed her duties in the department of history in Wellesley College.

'00 PhD—Professor Guy M. Whipple, of the University of Michigan, is absent on leave this year and is living at Danvers, Mass. He is engaged on two textbooks in educational psychology, and will also do a limited amount of work in the extension courses offered by Harvard and Boston Universities, and will probably conduct at Harvard one of the courses formerly in charge of the late Professor Inglis.

'00 BS—At the annual meeting of the Cornell University Association of Michigan held on October 4 in Detroit, Fred M. Randall was elected president. During the past year he served as chairman of the finance committee for Michigan territory in the Alumni and Endowment Fund

According to Sargon

IN the library of Sargon, mighty ruler of Assyria in 722 B. C., there is recorded the following story:

In the ancient Assyrian city of Sumer, there lived a beautiful maiden who was betrothed to a merchant prince in far-off India.

It so happened, when the time came for the young lady to go to her fiance, that none of her family were able to accompany her on the long, difficult and dangerous trip.

Fortunately a caravan was about to set out for India. Arrangements were made with the chief of the caravan to conduct the maid safely and in all honor, and to deliver her into the care of her intended, not permitting any man to look upon her face by the way.

This bride was protected by a Surety Bond

To make assurance doubly sure, the girl's father required the caravan chief to give a bond, guaranteeing the faithful performance of his trust. The bond was furnished with a Sumerian merchant as surety.

This transaction is one of the earliest recorded instances of Suretyship, a practice which today has become a great business, representing an investment of millions of dollars and constituting one of the most important factors in the successful conduct of modern-day business affairs.

$1.75 is the Correct Price on the SONGBOOK

We are receiving checks for $1.95 from customers for the Songbook. This was an error in printing and we have been refunding the difference. The Songbook is the only one in print which has the music. There are many other good songs as well as the Cornell songs. We pay the postage at $1.75.

Brief Cases

There are two kinds which are big sellers with us and we believe will interest our mail order customers as well as people in Ithaca. The two-pocket case sells at $3.75 and the three-pocket size at $5.00. These are made of 5-oz. brown leather.

Cross Section Papers

Every engineer should have our Cross Section Paper sample book in his files. We use only rag stock paper and accurate plates. These features are required by engineers. They are also appreciated by business men. A sample book is yours for the asking.
